ANNA WILLOUGHBY
... not convinced

On Confession

Let's Get Truth Says Cousin

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs. Anna Willoughby, cousin of Charles Heathman, said Wednesday she still isn't convinced that Heathman told the truth when he confessed last week to the murder of 10-year-old Vernon newsboy Donald Otley.

"The main thing now is that he get psychiatric treatment so we can find out the truth," she said in an interview.

Heathman appeared in police court Wednesday on a charge under the Mental Hospitals Act and was remanded five days for psychiatric examination. (See Page 7.)

Sake of Parents

"For the sake of the parents of the slain boy and for all concerned he should receive this treatment," she said. "I feel he needs it, just as hundreds of other people need it."

Mrs. Willoughby went to Seattle with Heathman after he made his confession to the Vancouver Sun Friday. She said she didn't know about the confession then.

When she learned Vancouver police were looking for Heathman, she said, she telephoned police here and told them she and Heathman would be returning to Vancouver on Tuesday or Wednesday at the latest.

Asked Committal

"I told them that as soon as we arrived I would be committing him to Crease Clinic. Police said that would be fine. He wanted me to commit him. I presume he still wants that."

"I don't know whether his confession was true or not. I don't know whether he confessed because it was true or because he wanted the money. I saw him in the jail in Seattle, and I still don't know if he is telling the truth."

"I was horrified when I saw what came out in the paper," said Mrs. Willoughby. "It's such a horrible, tragic affair. What must the parents be going through?"

Running Traffic Score

Rolling reminder of the hazards of driving in patrolling city streets today. City traffic constable M. E. Curry's motorcycle bears the grim box score on traffic mishaps, which is designed to give highway motorists a tip to drive carefully. Idea came from Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce traffic safety committee. Figures will be updated weekly. (Colonist photo.)

New Playland Site Sought On the Gorge

The promoters of the Sherwood Forest medieval playland scheme are negotiating with private interests for a new site on the Gorge.

"In view of the negative attitude registered by Saanich council regarding the Sherwood Forest project to be developed on city-owned property, and insofar as it is our hope to be in business by July of this year, the principals are instructing Mr. (Milton) Tisdale to investigate an offer to acquire another property on the Gorge waters," one of the firm's partners, Hugh A. Martin, has written to city council.

Forest development. The application was refused. He was also unable to win approval of city officials for the financial arrangements for developing the playland.

WEST OF HOTEL Mr. Martin, president of Maxwell Construction Company Ltd. of Vancouver, told the Colonist yesterday the site under consideration is "to the west of the Redwood Park Motel."

Mr. Tisdale has been conducting negotiations with Victoria and Saanich municipal officials over plans to lease a 9.8-acre site along the Gorge, between Millgrove and Tillam.

APPLICATION REFUSED While still negotiating with city officials over the terms of a lease for the land, Mr. Tisdale applied to Saanich council to have the area rezoned to permit the Sherwood

GM Earnings Hit New High

NEW YORK (UPI)—General Motors Corporation yesterday reported record earnings of $274,000,000, or $1.31 a share, for the first quarter of 1962.

Moslem Discipline Cracks Under Strain of Terror

Island's Power Lines Cut By Rig on Passing Ship

QUADRA ISLAND — This island was left without electricity last night after power lines across Seymour Narrows were cut. A 150-foot oil-drilling rig from Galveston, Tex., aboard the converted freighter Cuff II, snagged the four power lines, cutting them and pulling down wooden towers supporting the lines. B.C. Hydro officials say it may take a week to restore normal power to the island's 244 residents.

Abandon Ship Call Heard After Crash

ROTTERDAM (AP)—A Dutch shipping agency last night monitored radio broadcasts telling of a collision between two ships in the North Sea off Cape Finisterre. One ship radioed that her crew was abandoning the vessel. The other said she had taken a big hole in her bow and called for all ships in the area to come to her assistance. The Dutch agency reported it had monitored a radio message from the Greek tanker Kiasavos. The message from the 32,222-ton ship said

ALGIERS (UPI) — French security forces, fearing mass Moslem reprisals against Europeans, kept close watch yesterday over the native quarters of Algiers and Oran.

Police sources said the tempers of Moslems in the two biggest cities in Algeria are near the "breaking point" because of the daily bomb-and-bullet attacks by the outlawed European Secret Army Organization.

Reinforced security patrols stood guard near the teeming Moslem Casbah in Algiers.

PROVOKING MOSLEMS The OAS campaign is aimed at provoking Moslems into retaliation and forcing intervention by French security forces in hopes of wrecking the Franco-Algerian rebel cease-fire and President de Gaulle's program for an independent Algeria under Moslem domination.

Algerian nationalist leaders urged Moslems to refrain from violence to avoid jeopardizing the agreement reached at Evian in March. But ominous cracks in the tight Moslem discipline were beginning to show.

In one of the worst incidents, a mob of enraged Moslems attacked Europeans on the fringe of the Casbah in Algiers following an OAS bombing which killed two Moslems and wounded 20 other persons.

Blast Echoes Round World

U.S. Tests Regretted But Russians Blamed

LONDON (AP)—The United States' resumption of nuclear tests in the atmosphere Wednesday touched off a mixed chorus of denunciation and disapproval, regret and moral support.

'Middle Range' Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States fired the first explosion in its new nuclear test series in the atmosphere near remote Christmas Island in the Pacific at dawn Wednesday. It was a middle-range weapon dropped from an airplane.

The brief Atomic Energy Commission announcement gave no details. But other sources said word from Nuclear Task Force 8 on the scene was that this first of about three dozen U.S. shots expected to be touched off in the next two months was successful.

MINIMIZE FALLOUT The AEC sought to assure the people of the world that fallout from the U.S. would be held to a minimum.

Intermediate range is described by the AEC as equal to the explosive power of more than 20,000 tons and less than 1,000,000 tons of TNT—a relatively small explosion in the nuclear field. It's expected that the U.S. test will be limited to 10 megatons, compared with up to 35-megaton blasts in the Soviet series last fall.

Flying Pickets

To Meet Kennedy

Mac Arrives in U.S.

NEW YORK (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain arrived here Wednesday on the first stop of a North American tour during which he will have meetings with Canadian and American government officials.

Of his discussions with Kennedy, Macmillan said: "We have plenty to talk about. There are many problems and we are always in touch all the time but there is nothing like a personal discussion. I am looking forward to them."

Pacific Needs Bigger Fleet

Liberal David Groos, a former RCN captain, drew a bead on navy dispersal of ships when he fired the "opening shot" of his Esquimalt-Saanich federal election campaign at Shawnigan Community Hall last night.

Mr. Groos, introduced by Oak Bay MLA Alan Macfarlane, told supporters that the "time has come when more of Canada's navy should be stationed on the West Coast."

"There are almost three times as many ships and men on the East Coast... let's bring some of them home," said Mr. Groos.

He said the need for escort ships and sub-hunting submarines on the West Coast was "just as great" in the event of war.

He said more ships and submarines were needed to prevent enemy raiders from "sneaking into our coastal waters... let's take another look at the division between East and West. The historic requirement for having to provide ships to escort convoys to Europe... may no longer exist."

Never Wanted Ban Zorin Scolds West

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union charged Wednesday the United States government's final decision to resume atmospheric explosions was proof that the U.S. and Britain never wanted an agreement to ban nuclear weapons tests.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin told the 11-nation disarmament conference the two Western powers were insincere in insisting on effective international test-ban controls.

The statement was made before government informants in Washington disclosed that the United States had fired its first shot of the new nuclear test series in the atmosphere over the central Pacific.

"Everyone can now see that the United States and the United Kingdom were attempting to wash their hands before the peoples of the world and shrug off the responsibility for the tests," Zorin declared.

The Soviet delegate threatened last week to lead a Communist walkout as soon as the tests began. He did not repeat that threat.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

The same drunks return to police court week after week. With a jingle of big old-fashioned keys the court officer opens the door leading from the jail, and lets each of them in.

The order of their appearance varies. One day it is Jack, Bill and Charlie. Another day it is Tom, Charlie and Ed.

Each man stands alone in the prisoner's dock, looking small and crumpled under the scrutiny of all those eyes in the dark courtroom—a place that smells of misery. Fear and shame have soaked into the walls and floor.

One drunk—an old soldier—

Neat Description

"Guilty, your honor," the prisoner growls, contorting his leathery face, which looks as though it had been baked in a slow oven.

There are some slang words that describe chronic drunkenness very neatly. The drinker is said to be "boiled" or "pickled."

Maybe the drinker is a man who is trying to thicken his feelings and shut out the pain of the world. He boils or pickles himself in alcohol to deaden the twinges of self-pity.

And after a while his face coarsens and his skin grows thick, and those pains and re-

Still Money Left

Couldn't a better way be found? He disappears through the door. You can hear his voice echoing hollowly down the stale corridor, like a disembodied voice from a surrealist play, calling to a phantom.

The voice fades away. You can think of it as a voice of hope calling to the drunks—calling to the men they might have been.

But there is no answer. The officer comes back into the court.

"Well, esteemed," the magistrate says.

Ottawa 'Doing Fine' Without Knowles

WINNIPEG (CP)—Parliament has "managed to do very nicely" without Stanley Knowles, Postmaster General, William Hamilton said Wednesday night.

Speaking in a Progressive Conservative nominating convention for Winnipeg North Centre, Mr. Hamilton said the riding is being told that "parliament doesn't need Knowles." He called this "a supreme bit of egotism."

Mr. Knowles is the New Democratic Party candidate for the federal riding in the June 18 general election. He was OCF member for Winnipeg North Centre for four terms before being defeated in the 1958 election by Conservative John MacLean.

"Parliament functioned long before Stanley Knowles appeared on the scene," Mr. Hamilton said. It was "above and beyond one man."

Your Good Health

Do the Important Things First—Drop That Bag of Potatoes

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 35-year-old man, 5 feet, 7 inches tall, and weigh 160 pounds. After a double extra rice cardiogram, my doctor told me I have coronary insufficiency. He believes I can eliminate this condition if I reduce my weight to about 145 pounds. Can you add anything to his instructions which may help?—J. G.

This question reminds me of the aspiring athlete who wanted to be a distance runner. The trouble was—that he insisted on carrying two 10 pound bags of potatoes.

He went to a variety of coaches who advised him to stop carrying the potatoes around. One of the coaches shortened his stride, another lengthened it, and the third told him to buy several different kinds of track shoes. They all gave him instructions in breathing.

"IGNORANCE"

Nothing seemed to help very much, and he complained bitterly about their "ignorance," and the way they disagreed over various factors.

At this point a friend observed, "But you are still carrying those bags of potatoes."

"Aw, that!" said the frustrated runner. "That's just one of the things they told me. I thought I'd get all the other straightened out first."

Do I make myself clear?

ADVICE GOOD

Don't ask me if I can add to your doctor's instructions until you've done the one

It's Fun, Too! Fish Contest Helps Conservation

The Daily Colonist King Fisherman contest which starts its eighth year on Saturday is North America's biggest fishfest, but it is also the fishing contest most supported by conservationists.

In its seven years of existence $1,527 fish have been entered in the Colonist contest, but they have come from every tidal water, river, stream and lake on Vancouver Island.

There has been no undue pressure exerted on any fishing water because of the King Fisherman contest. In fact, the contest has helped to diversify the fishing and has thus proved a conservation measure. Anglers compete in the 3½-month-long contest while engaged in their normal fishing pursuits in their own favorite waters.

It has provided the means for the wise utilization of the fish resource, which is the definition of true conservation. It has provided more fun for more fishermen in more places.

The King Fisherman contest is free to everyone who fishes on Vancouver Island. Because most of the prizes are hidden weight prizes, all one has to do is to catch a trout or bass one pound, or heavier, or a salmon five pounds, or heavier, and weigh it in at any one of the 175 weigh-in stations now equipped

Sooke Logger Wins Float Design Prize

A 21-year-old logger has submitted the prize-winning design for a Sooke community float to be entered in the Victoria Day parade in Victoria.

Robert Nelson of Sooke won $25 for his float design showing the bow of an Indian canoe in which Capt. W. Colquhoun Grant, the area's first settler, landed in Sooke harbor in 1848.

The rear of the float will carry a modern pleasure craft symbolizing growth of Sooke into what its boosters proclaim is "The Eden of the Island."

On the day of the parade the float will carry Miss All-

Suspended Driver Jailed 20 Days

Twenty days in jail was the penalty handed Vilmos Windish, 1138 Pembroke, for driving while his licence was under suspension.

Magistrate William Outler imposed the sentence after Prosecutor Angus Smith had read a history of previous convictions.

Blair Folkard, 19, of HMCS Naden, pleaded guilty to stealing a tire and rim from Gordon Kennedy, 632 Wilson.

Douglas Thomas Booth, HMCS New Glasgow, pleaded guilty to possession of the tire and rim.

Folkard said he had not meant to commit theft.

Magistrate William Outler remanded them until May 2 for probation officer's report and released them in their own recognizances in the sum of $100.

An opened case of beer in the trunk, and liquor smell on the breath, cost a taxi driver a $25 fine yesterday.

"I don't suggest that you were intoxicated," Magistrate William Outler told Robert S.

Malahat Visit Postponed

Inspection of HMCS Malahat, Victoria's naval reserve division, has been postponed from Friday to Monday, May 7, because of the illness of the inspecting officer, Capt. J. C. Fisher, of Nanaimo.

Next regular drill is not for Monday.

Scouts' Big Day

Queen's Scout certificates staying in Scouting after yesterday was 19 years old will be presented to 319 boys today at 2:15 p.m. by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

The colorful ceremony will cap a day of guided tours, entertainment and sightseeing for the Scouts, who represent troops throughout B.C.

Officials said yesterday this year's contingent was the highest number in recent years. It topped last year's total by 59 and strengthened official opinion that Scouting is proving increasingly attractive to older boys.

"The number who have qualified as Queen's Scouts is going up every year and it would seem that the idea of

Jails: Soft, Educational And Bit Oily

WAUKESHA, Wis. (UPI)—Waukesha county recently completed construction of a new $1,500,000 "escape-proof" jail and courthouse. Deputies reported yesterday prisoner Lawrence Warlick, 39, used a spoon to dig his way out through two cement walls.

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)—Edward Sparrow, 62, was indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday as one of the masterminds of a $1,000,000 counterfeit bill operation. Sparrow learned photo-engraving while serving a term in the federal prison in Atlanta.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Charles Parkhurst, warden at the Davidson County workhouse, said yesterday that more than a dozen prisoners were each given five days in solitary confinement for refusing to take castor oil during an outbreak of colds.

Carmen Plays To the Gallery With First Shot

BRIGHTON, Eng.—Eamonn Bruen, 27, took his girl friend Carmen Rodriguez, 22, to a seaside shooting gallery to show her how to shoot.

The attendant loaded a rifle and handed it to Carmen who had never fired a gun before. Bruen gave her some instructions. Then, while he was reaching for his own rifle, Carmen swung toward Bruen and said, "Look at this!" She fired.

Bruen is in hospital with a bullet wound.

BELFAST—Louis Armstrong was given a swinging Irish welcome when he arrived for the first concert of his 19-day British tour. Thousands lined the sidewalks of Belfast's main thoroughfare, as his bus slowly paraded to a hotel behind a truckload of jazzmen.

ELLON, Scotland—Young Scottish Conservative MP Patrick Gordon has defeated with rank-and-file support local Tory leaders who objected to him on the grounds that he devoted too much time to the Moral Re-Armament program.

WASHINGTON—The wife of U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers has been discharged in good physical condition after treatment for "gastritis due to a medication reaction," from a weekend at the sea. Police had announced.

Young Canada Gives $310,000 to UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A cheque for $310,000, most of it collected in Halloween outings last year, was presented to the United Nations Children's Fund Wednesday by the children of Canada.

The cheque was turned over to the international organization by 16-year-old Rosanne Richman of Brooks, Alta., and 10-year-old Joel Thayer of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. They represented some 350,000 children from 1,500 centres that took part in the campaign.

Mrs. Adelaide Sinclair, a Canadian, who is deputy director of UNICEF, received the cheque at a ceremony in an 18th-floor conference hall at UN headquarters.

The Canadian ambassador to the UN, Charles S. A. Ritchie, welcomed the two children and said he was pleased that the children of Canada, in the interests of world understanding, had raised such a substantial contribution to UNICEF.

The total collected—$50,000 more than last year's contribution—amounted to almost half the $630,000 contributed by the Canadian government for 1961.

Udall Is Hopeful On Columbia 'Whoever Wins'

WASHINGTON (CP)—Interior Secretary Udall Wednesday expressed hope the winner of the June 18 Canadian general election will speed ratification of the Canada-United States Columbia River Power Treaty.

He told a press conference that because of the Canadian election fight and sensitivity of the Columbia issue, he did not want to make any extensive comments "except to express hope that whoever wins the election will get on with the business of ratifying the treaty and building the dams."

At the same time Udall appeared to be extending the time limit for Canadian ratification before seeking development of alternative power sources.

ALTERNATIVE DAMS

Last November he stated that if Canada did not soon ratify the treaty, the U.S. government would have to ask Congress at this current session for authority to build alternative dams in the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

Udall modified this position Wednesday by suggesting he would be well satisfied if the Canadian treaty is ratified before the end of 1962, so that construction might begin next year.

"If the treaty is ratified by Canada any time this year, none of us will be knocked off our stride in our planning," he said.

AUTHORIZE PROJECTS

The U.S. Army engineers will shortly announce its recommendations that Congress be asked to authorize a number of supplementary power projects in the Columbia River basin and Udall said this report will go to Congress before it winds up the session for November congressional elections.

But the U.S. government will ask only for congressional authority to proceed with planning the supplementary projects—not for appropriation of the necessary funds. This would be left until next year.

Udall said the U.S. "course is set" though the position of the government on power development is still "flexible."

Mammoth Saturn Soars and Sprays

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The giant Saturn rocket flew its second perfect flight Wednesday in a development program preparing it to take Americans to the moon.

And as a basic research sideline the Saturn was blown up intentionally about 2½ minutes after liftoff at an altitude of 65 miles, dumping its ballast of 95 tons of water into the upper atmosphere. The experiment, which produced a massive ice cloud and lightning-like effects, was called Project Highwater. Werner Von Braun, director

Christmas Island Nine U.K. Blasts

Atoll Old H-Test Site

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

Christmas Island, site of yesterday's U.S. atmospheric test explosion, is a British-owned atoll which is inhabited by friendly natives and harmless lizards, land crabs and rat-like creatures known as jerboas.

Its name comes from the fact that the first European explorer to discover it—Capt. Cook—came upon it on Christmas Eve, 1777.

In 1955 the British began to convert the sand and coral possession into a nuclear testing site. Nine hydrogen explosions were set off there in 1956, 1957 and 1958.

Early this year, Prime Minister Macmillan and President Kennedy reached agreement on using it for the U.S. test series that began yesterday. The island lies about 1,300 miles wide, with numerous lagoons cutting into its land area.

Geographers know it as the world's largest isolated atoll.

During the Second World War, the United States, with British permission, developed it into a key link in the Allied air communication route to the far Pacific. About 10,000 Americans were garrisoned there at one time.

Advance planning for the U.S. tests did not propose any evacuation of the natives inasmuch as they live upwind from the blast site with no anticipated danger from radioactive fallout.

Last of Peronist Wins Erased by President

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentine President Jose Maria Guido Wednesday night wiped out the last remaining election victories of supporters of exiled dictator Juan Peron. He said "the return of Peronism could have meant civil war."

The president spoke on a nationwide radio and television broadcast.

Guido barred the way of Peronists to congress before going on the air by issuing a decree nullifying the March 18 congressional elections in which Peronists took 47 of the seats in congress, about one-fourth. He also

A New View

DESPITE ANYTHING his many critics on both sides of the Atlantic may have to say about it, Prime Minister Macmillan's visit to Washington is being regarded by White House circles as one of utmost importance.

The fact that this is so indicates a complete switch in the American attitude from a year ago. At that time Mr. Macmillan was generally regarded—frankly but kindly—as a sort of hat-in-hand poor relation representing a "has been" nation.

Today the image has changed, and Mr. Macmillan is being greeted as a man of growing consequence in world affairs, the leader of a country which only a fool would look upon as a "has been."

The reasons for this re-alignment in American official thinking are not hard to find. They rest partly with the disillusionment of the United States in her other major Western allies and partly with the firm—though controversial—actions and policies of Mr. Macmillan himself.

Unquestionably the earlier determination of the American government to place more and more reliance upon France and West Germany for strengthening Europe has been sadly shaken through events of the past year.

The potential—and very live—threat of the Algerian civil war poses to the stability of the present government of France, the resultant weakening of the French contribution to the NATO European forces, and the republic's stubborn refusal to develop its own independent nuclear deterrent, are all factors which have removed General de Gaulle from the pedestal upon which he was earlier placed by the U.S. State Department.

Likewise Dr. Adenauer's prestige in the United States has sadly dwindled over the past year through his recalcitrant attitude over policy matters on which might depend the ultimate security of Europe.

Thus has come to the United States the realization that Britain still remains the major power in Europe upon whom full dependence can be placed. This, however, is not to say that the American government is in full accord with the British stand on all matters. And it is these areas of disagreement which will likely be covered in the Washington talks this week.

One topic which almost certainly will be discussed is the Macmillan government's decision to maintain its own independent nuclear V-bomber strike force. For long the United States has appealed to Britain to either scrap its deterrent or place it under NATO command on the basis that the U.S. NATO-controlled seaborne nuclear force is sufficient to destroy all enemy targets without any deployed tactical air units.

Yet, in spite of American objections, it is Britain's V-force which has largely been responsible for Mr. Macmillan's increased stature in the world today.

Already the smaller European nations are relying for their protection more on the British deterrent than they are on the American nuclear force. As highly as they regard the United States they cannot rid themselves of the fear that she may delay retaliation if Europe is subjected to an attack and North America is not.

One other feature which gives Mr. Macmillan additional strength in the eyes of the United States is the revelation of her importance to the remainder of the Commonwealth—a fact which has been vividly underlined as a result of her decision to enter negotiations with the European Common Market.

For these reasons—and others—the United States now sees Mr. Macmillan in a different light from that of a year ago. Not only do they see him as the most influential member of the British Commonwealth today, but as the most likely leader of the new united Europe of tomorrow.

Through Dark Glasses

CANADIAN PRESTIGE ABROAD, The Washington Star suggests, has declined. It says this "rather nebulous" issue could be used to advantage by the Liberals in the federal election campaign, for Canadians are sensitive on this point, and have "smarted, and understandably so, at any implication of 'junior partnership' with either Great Britain or the United States."

Thus returns the echo of Liberal gloom and denigration, for there seems no doubt that in suggesting that Canada's position in the world has suffered under the Diefenbaker government, the Star has merely picked up the Liberals' loud, sour trumpeting. True, Canadians are "sensitive on this point," in the respects that they take pride in the disproportionate contributions their nation has made toward effecting international understanding and peace; that they take pride in their country's trading position in the world and its standard of living; that they are jealous of their sovereignty but firm in their friendships and associations.

But in none of these respects has there been a deterioration in Canada's position in the past five years, except in the imaginings of Liberal leaders; rather the opposite is the case.

It is a shame therefore that the picture of Canada that sometimes goes abroad—as in this instance—is a picture as seen through Liberal glasses tinted politically dark. The misrepresentation itself contributes no hurt to Canada's name.

A Private Line

PRESUMABLY Mr. Kennedy could pick up the telephone any day and get through fairly quickly to Mr. Khrushchev, much as one imagines he does with Mr. Macmillan. One doubts they confer much off-the-record in this way, however.

Perhaps if all world leaders were connected by direct private wire the international situation might be easier.

At any rate the idea is now advanced that there should be a top priority direct telephone link between the White House and the Kremlin, to help avoid the danger of accidental nuclear war.

The biggest worry is not that either the U.S.A. or the U.S.S.R. will deliberately start a war but that a mistake, the malfunctioning of some electronic device, the wrongful landing of a rocket or missile by sheer error, might trigger the retaliatory blow that ushers in nuclear disaster.

A last-minute check by telephone between the two leaders could avert this.

The idea has merit, adding as it does to the other safeguards against premature action. It might induce also the habit of frequent consultation, in the kind of privacy best calculated to promote better relations.

Thinking Aloud

... of sheet, and shape, and feeling was ...

BY TOM TAYLOR

SEARCHING for something slim among old files I find that five years ago in this space there was written:

"That is one reason why it hopes that the proposed statue to Sir James Douglas will become a reality."

There must have been talk then in that direction, surely. What happened to it? The statue, I mean; or even the talk? Did it just fade away into nothingness?

This above all would have been the year for the erection of a stone figure of the founder of the city.

It has long been a habit, although not in Victoria, to praise famous men in bronze or stone. Whether people take the notice they should of such figures when they pass them may be problematical, although they would be unlikely to think of them at all if there were none.

It is good to be reminded of individuals who have left something worthwhile to posterity. Not all statues do this, some had better be left in the casting mould, but those which do invoke thoughts of value, even if only in passing.

Except in some places where there is a lingering tradition of statue-building you might say that the age of statues has passed, nevertheless. The preference now is for the personal pleasure of the living, it being thought a waste of good money to put up a monument when you can have a skating rink or a swimming pool.

The living are always selfish.

Whether this is a better method of praising famous men is a matter of opinion. When it comes to perpetuating the memory of groups of men, such as war dead, this column holds differently.

It thinks that a park, a stadium, and the like, is no guarantee that the memorial theme will avail for long, and that in these instances even less attention is paid to that aspect than to a granite statue.

How many people entering the Memorial Arena, for instance, ever give the slightest thought to those in whose name it was built? Or even pause before the flags in the foyer?

At least a stone figure does invite some concentration on the person whose name it bears.

This column is apt to have the suspicion, too, that some memorial projects are wrapped in this guise just to raise money.

In any case Victoria has been none too fulsome in praising illustrious citizens via the hand of the sculptor. What a pity for instance that the new Law Courts have no semblance of adornment of this nature.

Not even of the blindfolded lady to which they make obeisance.

Apart from Captain Vancouver and Queen Victoria—and, of course, the Cenotaph—the city is practically statueless. And all it has done for James Douglas is erect a small stone to mark the spot he landed and another one where once he lived.

There was thought five years ago, apparently, to make up for the omission by casting his form and likeness in bronze or stone. But alas, it must have vanished into thin air.

Changed Ways

By GREGORY CLARK

THERE is so much graft and corruption being talked about in the newspapers these days, said a very well-to-do man of my acquaintance, "that it is becoming embarrassing to be rich. Everybody thinks you got it by foul means."

The man to whom he was speaking, across the aisle in the club car, is a distinguished old lawyer who has been looking after wealthy men all his life, keeping them out of trouble in a variety of ways.

"Most really rich men," said he, "don't show it. It is just you half-rich, or new-rich, who can't resist putting on the dog. Back in the bad old days, around 1900, the thing to do when you gained wealth was to build a great mansion, of white brick preferred, and have a grand party in the parlor, and a curved gravel driveway, and a horse and carriage. You sent your daughters to a ladies' finishing school, and you went to New York once a year to get picked. You had a silk hat. Your wife had emeralds, and she was pretty about. But rich men today have skinny wives, and no silk hats. They live in apartments and have old, rundown summer homes. Only when they get arthritis do they buy a limousine. Their daughters are beatniks. Really rich men never look rich nowadays, and don't act rich. Times have changed for the truly wealthy."

Report From Ottawa

The Welcoming Roar

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

WHEN Prime Minister Diefenbaker arose in his place in the House of Commons to make the June 18 election date official, there was a roar of applause from every section of the chamber.

Every party and every member of every party was most anxious to create the impression that it or he welcomed the news.

The reason for the display of enthusiasm isn't hard to find. Any political party which didn't make it perfectly clear that it was almost beside itself with joy would be suspected of immediately being afraid of an election. And this, in turn, would suggest a want of confidence in its own ability to capture its share of the votes.

And any manifestation of want of confidence would be used by the party's adversaries to make sure that this was, in fact, the end result of the election.

That's why the various political parties and their members are beside themselves with joy, as a result of the announcement.

But are they?

General elections cost money—a commodity with which the national headquarters of the parties are never as well supplied to meet election exigencies as they would like.

Elections are lost, as well as won.

Opposition parties have less to lose than the government, not to gain. But, as the Conservatives discovered during their 22 years in the wilderness, an election which provides small gains but keeps a party out of power for another term, can be rightly discouraging.

For the individual member of Parliament, elections are not quite as attractive an eventuality as they would like others to believe.

The financial risks are proportionately greater for the individual than for the party. Elections have plunged many a promising parliamentarian into debt—a state in which he lingered until the end of his career. Creditors may be disposed to forgive, forget or defer payment of debts incurred by a national party organization, if only on the off chance that this forbearance may be remembered later when the party's fortunes improve. But as individual MP or one of his rival candidates is expected to pay bills on time like any other citizen.

One former MP once put himself on the record as saying, with great feeling: "Down in my part of the country, we have the most moral people to be found in the world but when an election comes around they regard it as a splendid holiday... They save up each candidate for what they can get out of him, and they generally run it up to the limit."

Decades ago, a candidate for the Canadian House of Commons described his experience in these stirring words:

"Every post brought an appeal for a subscription to aid me."

From the Scriptures

But be not thou far from me, O Lord; O my strength, haste thee to help.

—Psalm, 22:19.

some object or scheme which was threatened with extinction through want of funds to complete it. I was pathetically implored to remember that (a small expenditure) now would complete some great and beneficent work which, if those funds were denied, must perforce be abandoned and perish forever. Bazaars, bicycle clubs, tricycle clubs, boating clubs, skating clubs, football clubs, cricket clubs and many other similar associations adjured me to become their patron and aid them with some slight pecuniary consideration. When I turned it seemed that a festival was being organized for my special delight which I was required to foster and attend. Friendly societies in scores showed an eager desire to record my honored name upon their lists. Secretaries of chapel and school building funds poured exhortations upon me... So urgent and so insinuating were some of these appeals that they looked to me to be almost a modern adaptation of the old system of blackmail."

As the great Edmund Burke declared: "We know that the candidate, instead of trusting his election to the testimony of his behavior in Parliament, must bring the testimony of a large sum of money, the respect of liberal expenses in entertainment, the power of serving and obliging the rulers of corporations, of winning over the popular leaders in political clubs, associations and neighborhoods. It is 10,000 times more necessary to show himself a man of power than a man of integrity."

Matters have improved considerably since Burke's day, of course. But the demands are still heavy.

If considerations of expense are enough to cause any MP or experienced candidate to look upon an election campaign with misgivings, the MP must, as well, find it depressing to contemplate Parliament's high rate of turnover in members.

In any single election, the rate of turnover may fall as low as 35.5 per cent or soar as high as 59.1 per cent. During the 1956 general election, the average rate was much lower at 20.5 per cent. But this is attributable to the fact that it followed hard on the heels of the 1952 general election and that many of the voters hadn't had the customary four or five years in which to change their minds.

The turnover rate in the average election is about 45 per cent. Which is high enough to make any MP think twice about doing anything to hasten one.

Though he must, of course, demonstrate his exaltation when the date is finally announced.

A STIFLING, steamy, heat covers the "city" of Sao Antonio do Zaire—some 800 persons living along two un-paved streets. This border town between Angola and the Republic of the Congo is almost surrounded by the Congo River, which only a few miles from here reaches the sea. On the opposite side is the port of Banana and the famous military base of Kitona. Behind us, towards the south, are endless forests, swamps and dense jungle.

The house of the administrator is outdated, but well in style for an old-timer, rough, kind, hospitable, who served in the tropics long before air-conditioning was invented and does not believe in these new-fangled machines made for people who can't take it. The doors are generally wide open, the rusty keys no longer lock; anyone could walk in.

All afternoon and evening I drove around with him into villages, through dense thickets, on trails rendered almost impassable by the rainy season. We had no arms. Every where the natives would crowd around us, amiable, smiling, talkative, headed by the "Sobas," a freely elected dignitary, half-chief and half-mayor. The security of the vast region is assured by a platoon of native Angolan soldiers, mostly recruited in the area. Terrorists? None of them originate from the district, despite some highly imaginative communiques issued by propaganda of the United States.

It is here that I learned the news of the formation of an Angolan government-in-exile in Leopoldville.

Holden Roberto claims to speak for the resistance forces fighting inside Angola. True, his UPA makes terrorist actions. But these are based on the fact that the hard fact is that Asia remains one of the most underdeveloped regions in the world. The situation was summed up by assistant UNESCO director-general Dr. Malcolm Adiseshiah:

"While our Latin American and African brothers are concerned with the life and future of 200,000,000 people each, we in Asia are having to deal with the education of nearly 1,000,000,000 people. While the other regions start with a per capita income of over $100 and expect to move up spectacularly, we start with a per capita income of less than $50 and face a difficult and steep slope in this regard in the coming decade."

Of course, overall figures tend to be misleading, since neighboring countries differ greatly in standards of living and degrees of development.

At the one extreme is Japan, with a living standard approaching that of Europe and an educational system among the most advanced in the world. At the other is Afghanistan, which believes that it will be 1980 at the very earliest before the minimum goal of seven years' free, compulsory education is achieved.

Close to Japan regarding the proportion of the population being educated are Nationalist China, Malaysia and Singapore. Ceylon reported 78.2 per cent of children of primary school age were in school. Burma predicted it would reach the Karachi Plan goal by 1977, and Cambodia is allocating 15.9 per cent of its budget to education. By 1968, 80 per cent of Indian children between five and 11 should be attending school. Particular attention is being paid to expanding educational opportunities for girls. Indonesia hopes to reach the Karachi Plan goal by 1970—but this will require 300,000 classrooms in comparison with 75,000 available at present. Iran expects to reach the target by 1963.

In some cases, the statistics presented were obviously not as impressive as they sounded. Nepal, for example, started out by saying that in 1961, enrolment in its primary schools was 20 times larger than it was in 1951. It then went on to say that 1.9 per cent of the population was now receiving primary school education. The problems posed by poverty were well demonstrated by Laos, where teachers' salaries alone account for 13 per cent of the national budget.

Despite their differing rates of progress, however, nearly all Asian countries are facing the same problems—lack of money. Not only are there insufficient schools (in South Korea the average primary school class is 65, while many have as many as 86 and work on three shifts) and too few teachers, but there are not enough textbooks. Children are also held back from school because they are vital contributors to the family income.

What remedies are being sought for these problems? Many nations are interested in the decentralized financing used effectively in Formosa and Pakistan, where school construction costs are shared by local communities and the central government. It was suggested that special levies or taxes could be enforced on business to help expand education—particularly in the vocational field. It was also suggested that more stringent economies in educational administration plus the mobilization of greater voluntary co-operation could cut costs sharply.

It was decided that if Asia were ever to catch up with the more advanced regions it could not slavishly follow the example of others. Dr. Adiseshiah said: "We have decided boldly to adapt and use in our countries all the modern techniques and mechanical devices that are available to us in this technological era. These might involve the use of mass television and radio, he added."

But, as delegates left Tokyo's ultra-modern Festival Hall where the conference was held to begin tours of Japan's ancient splendours, they were obviously haunted by the spectre of where to find sufficient financing to reach their target.

There was no indication throughout the meeting that any large-scale foreign aid was contemplated. UNESCO announced that it would spend $2,400,510 to help develop Asian education in 1963-64, and the delegates passed a resolution urging the expenditure of an additional $500,000.

Japan, with its nine-year compulsory education system, its vast school lunch program, its cheap universities and its enormous publishing industry, was frequently referred to by speakers as an example, which should be followed by the rest of Asia. Both Japanese Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda and Education Minister Masuoka pledged "co-operation" in speeding up the development of Asian education, but it was made clear by Japanese delegates that this would not involve much financial aid.

The influential Asahi Shimbun remarked somewhat cynically that "although we promised to extend assistance, we appeared that Japanese aid will be limited to technical assistance—which doesn't cost much money."

For Asia, it appears, education will continue to be a luxury for some time to come.

Education in Asia

Still a Luxury

By JOHN CAMPBELL from Tokyo

HAMPERED by poverty and plagued by shortages of everything except potential pupils, Asia is nevertheless making progress in its fight to overcome ignorance and illiteracy. This is the main conclusion reached by top education officials from 18 Asian nations at a meeting in Tokyo.

The Ministerial Conference on Education was a follow-up to a similar conference held in Karachi in 1960. It was decided at that time that the most pressing need was to provide all Asians with a minimum of seven years' free, compulsory education and the Tokyo meeting was called to review progress toward reaching this goal by 1980.

Officials made clear, however, that education in Asia faces not only such familiar problems as too few schools, too few teachers and too few textbooks—it must also compete for a share of the small capital available with ambitious industrial development projects, with military needs, and with other perquisites of rising nationalism.

Speaking publicly, most officials were optimistic about the future development of education in their own countries. Privately, they conceded that they faced enormous problems.

There just isn't enough money for everything," one delegate from Southeast Asia said. "We have to compete with the military and the economic planners for our share of the cake." At present, Asian countries are allocating an average of two per cent of their gross national product to education.

By 1980, it is hoped, the average allocation will be approaching Japan's present level—more than five per cent.

However, the hard fact is that Asia remains one of the most underdeveloped regions in the world. The situation was summed up by assistant UNESCO director-general Dr. Malcolm Adiseshiah:

"While our Latin American and African brothers are concerned with the life and future of 200,000,000 people each, we in Asia are having to deal with the education of nearly 1,000,000,000 people. Actor John Wilkes Booth, slayer of Abraham Lincoln, was shot to death in a Virginia barn 97 years ago today—in 1865. Booth, who had sympathized with the south during the Civil War, killed the U.S. president April 14 and was hiding from pursuers when he was slain 12 days later.

1908—Notre Dame de la Salette, Que., was partly destroyed by landlides, killing 37 persons.

1943—The Soviet Union severed diplomatic relations with the Polish government-in-exile in London.

Salaries Secret

'Sinister' Action Of Headquarters Alarms Minister

Sharp denunciation of the way church headquarters was handling its funds erupted at a meeting of the Anglican Synod of the Diocese of British Columbia, meeting in Victoria yesterday.

A general concern—expressed by many members of the synod—was summed up by Very Rev. J. W. Whitlow, dean of Christ Church Cathedral.

ENQUIRIES MADE

"When we received a request from the general synod of the church, asking for an increase in funds from our diocese, we made certain inquiries."

"A request made to the general synod for information on salaries paid at the headquarters was refused on the grounds that the information was confidential."

IMPUDENT

The dean expressed deep concern for what he termed the "sinister behavior" of the general synod.

"We received what I consider to be an impudent and irresponsible reply to our request for information. These salaries are paid from the levies made on our diocese and we have a perfect right to know exactly what is being spent—and where it is being spent."

DESK DELUGED

Dean Whitlow said he was alarmed by the flood of mimeographed communications which have deluged his desk.

from the various church information services in recent months.

"It got so bad that I have begun keeping track of exactly how much bump they have been cluttering my mail with," he told the synod.

CHORE GROWS

"In the few months since I started this little chore I find that mail has come to me under 13 separate headings and has come in such quantities as to require three hours reading a day for a couple of months—if you read it."

A new plan for payment of supplementary pensions to clergymen retired in the diocese, was disclosed to the synod by treasurer R. W. Phipps.

BASIC PENSIONS

Under terms of the estate of the late Emily Garrod, a fund of some $200,000 has been set in trust for this purpose.

Mr. Phipps told the synod that the fund would provide basic pensions for retired clergymen up to a maximum of $800.

The plan has been modified to pay elderly ministers on an honorarium the difference between what they earn and the $800 a year.

Tories Meet Tonight

Gelling May Run As Independent

W. C. Gelling, who was declared by party officials to be out of the running for the Progressive Conservative nomination in Victoria, said last night he is prepared to seek election June 18 as an independent, if necessary.

Before making the decision, however, he will attend tonight's nominating convention in the Britannia Branch Legion Hall.

STILL POSSIBLE

There is still a possibility he will be nominated from the floor and the meeting will suspend the constitution to let him stand.

"If those who oppose my right to stand for nomination are not prepared to meet us at the convention, perhaps they had better be prepared to meet us at the polls on election day," said Mr. Gelling.

P. J. Sinnott, president of the Victoria federal riding association, said earlier Mr. Gelling was disqualified because of the rule in the local constitution that a candidate must be a party member 30 days before the nominating convention.

Mr. Gelling contended the date of the convention was not announced until less than a month ago.

John D Regrets A-Test

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—News of the new American nuclear blast in the Pacific was received Wednesday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker with an expression of "deep regret" that the Geneva disarmament conference had found no agreement on a nuclear test ban. He said it now is "even more imperative" to persist in efforts to reach such an agreement.

"The whole matter is of such consequence to the future of the human race that the search for a solution must be pursued with renewed determination."

Mr. Diefenbaker was getting off to a start on his election campaign travels.

He visited crippled children, attended two civic receptions and gave an assist to fellow Kiwanis Club members who are sponsoring a big sportsman's show in this Lakehead city.

The prime minister spoke only briefly. "I'm not going to interfere with your pleasure by making a speech," he said.

Public Debate?

Diefenbaker Rejects Challenge by Pearson

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—After five years of Progressive Conservative rule, "it is Canada that now needs another chance," Liberal Leader Pearson said Wednesday night in the formal opening here of his election campaign.

He challenged Prime Minister Diefenbaker to a public radio or television comparison of government achievements with Liberal party policies for the future.

In Fort William where he is visiting, Mr. Diefenbaker dismissed Mr. Pearson's suggestion with the comment: "I'm not interested in providing TV audiences for others."

Mr. Pearson said the Conservatives are no nearer construction of a causeway linking Prince Edward Island and the mainland than they were five years ago.

WHAT GOES ON UP IN THE VILLAGE OF NEWBY EAST

—one of the remote hamlets among the beautiful fells of Cumberland, and not so far from the Scottish Border? Something strange, yet after a couple of days there I'm as far from the truth as ever. In this Year of Grace, 1962, it seems strange to write about a village of superstition and fear.

"I do not mind telling you," he said, "but I am a little bit frightened about what might happen in this village. The people are divided into several camps."

Beware Dictators Archbishop Warns

"Be on guard against any indication of a trend to dictatorship in public life."

This was the warning issued yesterday by Archbishop Harold Sexton in his charge to the 60th synod of the Anglican Diocese of B.C. meeting in Victoria.

"Canadians," the archbishop said, "are generally unfavorably disposed toward any dictatorial processes in the life of the country."

"It would be well to be on guard against—and resist—any indication of it in our public life."

He was asked later if his reference was directed at the H.C. government.

"Those whom the cap fits," said the archbishop, "must wear it."

SCENE OBSCURED
In his charge to the 300 clergy and lay delegates, Archbishop Sexton said the church does not lend its support to any political group.

"Nevertheless, we are as interested as anyone else in the national and provincial welfare."

The archbishop found the local scene obscured, literally, by the billows of industrial smoke and ash that hover over the city.

GETTING WORSE
"The smoke seems to be getting worse instead of better and it can even be seen as one approaches Victoria by water early in the morning."

"It certainly does not enhance the appearance of the city."

Turning his attention to international affairs, the archbishop called for the triumph of Christian reason in an all-out attempt at disarmament.

He branded as "senseless" the present armed, distrustful truce, and called for definite action to replace it.

Anglicans Meet

Delegates Picked For Summer Synod

The Anglican Synod of the Diocese of British Columbia, meeting in Christ Church Memorial Hall yesterday, elected eight clergy and a like number of lay representatives to participate in the church's general synod at Kingston, Ont., this summer.

Representing the clergy will be Canon F. C. Austin, Canon T. Bailey, Ven. P. R. Ellis, Ven. A. E. Hendy, Canon B. T. Page and Very Rev. B. W. Whitlow.

Lay delegates will be Lt. Col. Fairfax Webster, W. E. Mantle, Lt. Col. D. S. Mitchell, Capt. T. B. T. Hewett, H. L. Henderson and Dr. F. T. Fairley.

Clergy representatives on the synod's executive committee are Canon T. Bailey, Canon G. H. Greenhalgh, Ven. R. B. Horsefield, Canon H. J. Jones, Canon B. T. Page, Rev. T. D. B. Ragg, Rev. J. A. Roberts and Rev. C. E. Lonsdale.

Representing the laity on the executive committee are J. S. Gilbert, H. L. Henderson, Capt. T. B. T. Hewett, Lt. Col. D. S. Mitchell, Dr. G. G. Reynolds, Peter Stone, Dr. F. T. Fairley and W. E. Mantle.

Nominees to the committee from rural deaneries are Rev. William Hills, Rev. D. B. Houghton, Canon F. C. Austin, Capt. C. F. Gibson, Capt. J. H. Worsley and D. L. Handley. The synod concludes today.

Cadboro Bay Presses Ravine Park Scheme

Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association intends to press its campaign to have Saanich buy Mystic Springs ravine to preserve it as a pedestrian park.

The association intends to ask council members to visit the ravine, which stretches from the Gordon Head campus to Cadboro Bay Road, to "see for themselves" the value of the ravine as a park and bird sanctuary.

SHELVED QUIETLY

A bid to rezone the upper portion of the ravine for apartment blocks several months ago created a storm in Cadboro Bay and the application was shelved quietly by council.

But, says one municipal official, the applications still are pending.

Up for rezoning is about five acres of the 11-acre property, which is privately owned.

NOT AMONG SITES

Lands and planning committee chairman Coun. R. W. Chard said the property was not among park sites being given active consideration by council.

Ratepayers' Association treasurer Bruce M. Leyden said the property as a pedestrian park and bird sanctuary is a "tremendous asset" to the entire community.

Emergency-Only Rule Not Strike—Doctors

REGINA (CP)—A Saskatchewan and District Medical Society decision that normal practices be halted, if the province's compulsory medical care plan goes into effect unchanged, does not denote strike action in any form, medical authorities said Wednesday.

"Doctors cannot of course strike, but we are not prepared to work under the act," Dr. H. D. Dalgleish of Saskatoon, president of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, said in a telephone interview.

Dr. Nathan Goluboff, president of the Saskatoon and District Society, said: "We're in a dilemma; how can we practice at all without going under the plan. Obviously we can't practice in our offices, but there is no question of withholding emergency service."

A resolution passed by the society Tuesday night condemned the Medical Care Act and expressed refusal to provide all medical services under the act. The vote was unanimous, with three abstentions. Dr. Goluboff said the resolution did not mean no service would be provided, but essential services provided would not be under the act and normal practices would be halted.

He said these practices have not been spelled out yet. Premier Woodrow Lloyd, who has said the plan will go into operation July 1 with or without the co-operation of the doctors, said, "It's their responsibility to decide whether they will give or withhold services to their patients. They accept the consequences of this. They have their own consciences."

Basically, we propose that you put up the land and we'll put up the development money and we'll all have a public course." EXTENSION SEEN Possible arrangement mentioned during the meeting would have Victoria lease the land to Saanich for a 20-year period at $1 a year, with Saanich spending up to $150,000 to build the nine-hole course. Reeve Murphy intimated that Saanich would use any profits from operation of the course to improve or extend it.

Civic Leaders Agree On New Golf Course

Long-delayed decision on the establishment of a nine-hole golf course at Beaver Lake was made yesterday in a special meeting between representatives of Victoria and Saanich councils.

The civic leaders decided to recommend the establishment of the course to their councils. Victoria owns the land and Saanich proposes to build the course.

TO MEET AGAIN Once this approval is gained, representatives will meet again to hammer out the details of establishing the course.

Manning Products

Timber Firm Buys Bray's Transfer

Sale of Bray's Transfer Ltd. to Manning Timber Products Ltd. was announced jointly yesterday by principals of both companies.

Involved in the purchase of the trucking company, which started business here more than 70 years ago with horse-drawn drays, are about 55 trucking units and offices and warehouses on Johnson and Pembroke Streets.

officials of Manning Timber said. Besides cartage business within the Greater Victoria area, the company has scheduled freight lines operating between Vancouver and Victoria via the government ferries.

Charles Rutan of Manning Timber will be acting manager of Bray's and one of the former owners, William Bray, will carry on as superintendent of operations and sales. Price paid for the cartage company was not disclosed.

Psychiatric Tests Ordered

Heathman Charged

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charles Heathman, who has confessed to the slaying of a 16-year-old boy for whose murder he twice escaped the gallows, was given into the hands of psychiatrists Wednesday.

The 33-year-old Winnipeg-born Heathman, brought back from the United States Tuesday, made a four-minute court appearance before magistrate James Barman and was charged under the Mental Hospitals Act as a man mentally ill "and too dangerous to be at large."

FIVE DAYS

He was remanded for five days to undergo psychiatric examination by court-appointed psychiatrists.

Heathman kept his eyes down during the brief hearing, glancing only once at the magistrate.

He was represented in court by lawyer Joseph J. Molison who said he had been retained

Court Rejects $30,000 Plea For Lost Bail

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice T. W. Brown refused in Supreme Court yesterday to issue an order presuming the death of bail-jumper Leslie Hafftor.

Application for the order was made on behalf of Albert John Gergott and Mrs. Irene Gergott who posted a total of $30,000 bail for the man who failed to appear for trial last November on a drug trafficking charge.

"Hafftor has an impressive criminal record and was facing five charges," commented Mr. Justice Brown. "The evidence does not persuade me that he is more likely to be dead than alive. He had a strong incentive for disappearing and the case is so nebulous that the request is refused."

High-Rises Start Up Next Month

Construction of two high-rise apartment buildings in James Bay is scheduled to begin toward the end of next month.

Workmen are clearing the sites at 435 Michigan and at 450 Dallas Road.

The Michigan Street apartment block will contain 12 storeys and 120 suites. Value of construction is $200,000. A 10-storey apartment on Dallas Road will contain 50 suites and construction is valued at $272,000.

J-85 Engines To Power RCAF Jets

OTTAWA (UPI)—The General Electric J-85 jet engine has been chosen to power the 100 CL-41 jet trainers to be built for the Royal Canadian Air Force, Defence Production Minister Raymond O'Hurley announced yesterday.

The engine will be built by Orenda Engines Ltd. of Montreal.

The airframe of the trainer would be built by Canadair Ltd. of Montreal.

No figures of the cost of the program or of the engines were announced but the cost could run as high as $200,000,000.

'Seal' Clinic Under Way

Work began yesterday on the new $63,500 Victoria Christmas Seal Clinic being constructed by Dillabough and Loney, Victoria contractors.

The new clinic on property donated by Royal Jubilee Hospital, is expected to be completed by August.

German Woman Robbed of $50

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two youths, one brandishing a gun, robbed a visitor from Germany of $50 here early Tuesday. Mrs. Ellie Bethge, 53, told police the pair accosted her from a car while she was walking to her daughter's apartment. Mrs. Bethge, who speaks only German, clung to her purse but one of the thugs snatched it away and the pair drove off.

UBC Backs Staff Books

VANCOUVER (CP)—The University of B.C. will use a $125,000 request from the late Frank Burd, former publisher of the Vancouver Province, toward establishment of a university press.

The money will be invested and the income used to encourage publication of books by faculty members and scholars in general. There are no plans for a printing plant.

7 Cut Near Nelson

NELSON (CP)—A six-inch natural gas line was dynamited 15 miles west of here Tuesday night.

RCMP said the explosion about 10:30 p.m. cut the Inland Natural Gas Company line on the shore of the Kootenay River near the settlement of Glade.

They said a second explosion several hours later was reported at Winlaw, about 20 miles northwest of here, but investigating officers have been unable to verify the report.

RCMP said Sons of Freedom Doukhobors are believed to have blown the gas line at Glade.

Officers from Crescent Valley, Castlegar and the special D Squad from Nelson are investigating aided by a tracking dog.

It was the second time in a week that the company's line has been cut by explosions.

Last Tuesday night the firm's 12-inch line five miles east of Grand Forks was blown up by 16 to 18 sticks of dynamite.

Company officials at Inland's office in Penticton said yesterday gas will be supplied from a standby plant here until the line is repaired.

Gorge Hotel, which has been seeking to sew up first place in the Victoria and District Soccer League since last October, accomplished this aim in the last 10 seconds of the league schedule last night at Royal Athletic Park.

Gorge was faced with the problem of beating Esquimalt 7-0 in order to be awarded first place on a superior goals average over Kickers. Ian Holroy's goal on a penalty kick 10 seconds from time gave them that 7-0 victory.

Kickers, 73 and 22, finished .768.

Gorge, Kickers, Excels and Duncan, who finished in that order, now take part in a post-season playoff, dates and venue of which have not been determined.

Chummy Crabbe got Gorge off the mark with two quick goals in the first half against Esquimalt last night, Red Mc-Millan, Holroyd and Russ Ball counted to make the score 5-0 by half time. Roy St. Denis made it 6-0 to set the stage for Holroyd's heroic shot.

But Shamrocks, with a decided edge in depth and experience, got 10 of the last 11 goals, settling things with four straight in the last quarter. In a game where goals were reasonably scarce, Shamrocks got a good defensive work, notably from Skip Mackay, late of Nanaimo, and Don Sepka, late of New Westminster.

Mackay also found time for two goals and an assist, a performance matched by Whitey Severson and Jim McNeill. Al Davies, Billy Gray, John Hanson and Tom Collett got the other goals, and the speedy Collett was by far the outstanding player on the floor.

DETERMINED BAND

Ed McDonald, steady and competent as ever for Nanaimo, scored two goals for Arnie Dugan's determined band of youngsters.

The others came from Ted Liebeck, Gord Lawlor and Terry Davis, the Ontario youngster who won the eastern league scoring championship last year.

McNeill, who scored four goals in the final quarter against Nanaimo in last Saturday's Shrine game, again took three quarters to get wound up, and again broke the game open, scoring two in a row to make it 8-4.

Views of Sport

By Red Smith

Warren Edward Spahn, of Buffalo, N.Y., Bradford, Pa., Evansville, Ind., Hartford, Conn., Boston, Milwaukee, and Hartshorne, Okla., was 41 years old on Monday, it says in the book.

In matters of faith and morals such as batting averages and stolen bases, the baseball record books are highly reliable, but they are not infallible with regard to the ages of players. "Dummy Hoy, 99 years old," Joe Garagiola mused when that mute but mighty outfielder of the ancient Red Stockings was chosen to throw out the first ball at a world series game in Cincinnati last October, "is that his real age, or his baseball age?"

Anyhow, Schooboy Spahn celebrated a birthday on April 26. It is altogether likely that before he has another, the documentary evidence will confirm beyond argument what most fans deeply believe—that he is the finest left-handed pitcher who ever tickled the outside corner.

When Spahn won a seven-hitter against the Giants last Thursday, he scored his 310th major league victory. When he gets 17 more—and only once in 13 seasons has he failed to win that many—he will be the biggest winner who ever threw from the wrong side of the rubber. Eddie Plank, who won 325 games in the American League and 21 in the Federal, was the only other lefthander in human history to win more than 300.

Headed for Hall of Fame

The other day a fellow watching Stan Musial take aim on the right field wall in the Polo Grounds remarked idly, "I guess this guy, Spahn, and Willie Mays are the only ones now in the league who are sure to go into the Hall of Fame, eh?"

Nobody demurred about the word "sure." Nobody could be more certain of a niche in Cooperstown than a pitcher whose record already marks him greater than Carl Hubbell, greater than Rube Waddell, greater than Herb Pennock, greater than Lefty Grove, all card-carrying immortals.

Spahn would need three more successful seasons to do it, yet it is not inconceivable that he could climb from eleventh place to fifth on the all-time list of winners, surpassing everybody except Cy Young, Walter Johnson, Grover Alexander and Christy Mathewson.

Even that comparison, impressive though it is, does not do Spahn full justice. In fairness it should be pointed out that he was 25 years old before he won a big league game; that among the demigods with records topping his, only Johnson and Alexander in their very last years had to throw the 50-megaton grenade of Spahn's time; that Spahn had no sooner arrived with the Braves than the Army called him away for three full seasons.

Hitler Hurt His Career

Considering that Spahn won 21 games in his first complete postwar summer, it is not unreasonable to estimate that he might have at least 45 more victories in his record today if it hadn't been for Hitler. Still, those years of 1943-44 weren't a total loss. Except for Hitler, Spahn would have missed a lot, like the Bronze Star he won in the Battle of the Bulge, and the load of shrapnel he caught in the left foot at Remagen Bridge.

What does it take for a pitcher in the lively ball era to achieve success which guys like Chief Bender, Iron Joe McGinnity, Big Ed Walsh, Jack Chesbro, or even Old Hoss Radbourne couldn't reach with the soggy old glob they threw?

The equipment in Spahn's case includes a magnificent arm, 175 pounds of lean and stringy gristle on six feet of whalebone, utter dedication, and a studious intelligence. He is a serious competitor and a thoughtful one.

"I find," he was saying in Bradenton, Fla., one day this spring, "that I have to wait until the season starts to get my thinking straightened out. In the winter I might say and believe that I do certain things on the mound, but I could be deceiving myself. These games down here aren't the real thing, either. The sand fields slow both the ground balls and the runners, and there's no uniformity about the mounds."

Just There to Get Ready

"A player knows he's here primarily to get ready for the real thing. He wants to win, always, but the challenge isn't there, the incentive. Everything is different after the season starts."

Jim Brosnan, Cincinnati's literate pitcher, described in his book the soul-searching emotions of a player on the eve of opening day. Does Spahn experience the same feelings? "Not exactly," he said, "it's a serious time. You realize that from now on it's for keeps and what's past doesn't matter. You must prove yourself all over again, or if last year was a bad year, you must prove that this is different. But—" he paused.

"I believe you have to like baseball to succeed in it," he said, "and sometimes I wonder whether Brosnan really likes the game. Sometimes, the things he writes, I wonder what he's trying to prove."

"That's a writer."

"Yes," Spahn said without rancor, "but he was a ball player first."

At this time the Braves were having a rough go in the exhibition games, with something like four victories and a dozen defeats. Spring training games mean nothing, but—"We're somewhat dismayed," Warren said.

A crowd that had come to cheer the return of the Shamrock name and colors could do little but mutter discontentedly for the best part of 30 minutes as Nanaimo built a 3-1 lead at the quarter and looked threatening while trailing 4-3 at the half.

But Shamrocks, with a decided edge in depth and experience, got 10 of the last 11 goals, settling things with four straight in the last quarter. In a game where goals were reasonably scarce, Shamrocks got a good defensive work, notably from Skip Mackay, late of Nanaimo, and Don Sepka, late of New Westminster.

Mackay also found time for two goals and an assist, a performance matched by Whitey Severson and Jim McNeill. Al Davies, Billy Gray, John Hanson and Tom Collett got the other goals, and the speedy Collett was by far the outstanding player on the floor.

Firemen Nearing PCL Soccer Title

Wednesday's game earned the Scots many friends. Outplaying the Firefighters for most of the game, St. Andrews deserve at least a tie but could not finish off their fine mid-field play.

Firefighters fought desperately towards the end with numerous petty fouls resulting. Following one incident, Doug Greig of the Firefighters and Dick Crompton of St. Andrews were sent off the field by referee Frank Lee.

Towards the end of the game Firefighters moved veteran Art Hughes up to centre forward and the move paid off when Hughes headed home a corner kick from fullback Gary Stevens.

The defeat was the ninth straight for St. Andrews but

If You've Got the Ball, You're Safe

BALTIMORE (AP)—Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, a former New York Yankee took the play away from the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday.

The former star left handed pitcher, now a salesman for a sporting goods firm, tossed out more than his share of verbal curves while speaking at a luncheon honoring the Orioles.

Gomez said one of the main lessons he learned as a pitcher was: "While you've got the ball in your hands, you're safe."

Gomez said as a batter he had only one weakness—a pitched ball. "When I went to the plate, fans used to yell, 'Look Lefty—hit a foul!'"

"One day I hit the third double of my career—counting high school ball—and then I was picked off second base."

"Manager Joe McCarthy asked 'what happened out there?' and I said, I don't know. I've never been out there before."

Recalling his term as a manager with Binghamton, N.Y., Lefty said "we clinched last place on opening day."

"During one stretch we lost 11 games in-a-row, and then we had a game postponed. I threw a victory dinner for the team."

Chain of 'Golf Colleges' Could Help Young Stars

By NAY COLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Golf has been good to Stan Leonard, the apologetic Vancouver professional, and he wants to return the favor.

At 47, Leonard has been a touring professional only seven years but has an international reputation second to none in Canadian sport. Now he wants Canadian youngsters to have the opportunity to reach the same status.

Leonard wants to see the establishment of a country-wide chain of "golf colleges" to raise the standard of play and eventually make Canada a first-class power in international golf.

GIVEN MEMBERSHIP

"I recall that when I was 14, and considered a fairly promising player, I was given a year's membership in the old Staughton Golf Club.

"I consider that a vital turning point in my career because I was then able to play far more golf than I could have otherwise afforded, and also far better facilities for practice. I would like to see many more young Canadian golfers get such an opportunity. We should see to it that they get it."

WEEK'S SCHOOL

Leonard's plan is for summer schools in selected areas across Canada. Each would hold a week's term on a golf course taken over exclusively under a rental arrangement. The schools, staffed by the best available pros in the area, would give intensive instruction to promising young golfers.

The students would pay a nominal sum, "perhaps $50 or $70," for the week's seminar, including keep and attend full-time daily classes. The rest of the cost would be made up by golf association subsidies, local clubs, interested sportsmen and private industry.

"One of the greatest weaknesses and inequalities of our golf system," says Leonard, "is that so many young golfers—because of the financial inability of their parents to join a private club—are denied the chance of playing on private courses, under the surveillance of the club pro."

COURSES CROWDED

"It is pretty difficult—as well as costly for many young players—to play enough golf, and learn it properly, on our crowded public courses."

The Leonard plan would see summer golf schools in British Columbia, possibly two of the Prairie provinces, Ontario, Quebec and in the Maritimes.

"It's an excellent idea," says Jock McKinnon, pro at West Vancouver's private Capilano Club. "And it would only be a matter of time before it pays off."

McKinnon says a similar plan has been working well for some time in Britain, where local golf associations sponsor schools for young golfers from 12 to 20.

Levy Goldsworthy, Point Grey professional, says the idea is "wonderful" but he's doubtful whether golf courses could find room for the youngsters.

Len Collett, professional at Marjorie Drive, is sure most private clubs would make room.

"It wouldn't be necessary for the schools to have exclusive use of a course. They could be allotted so many hours a day, use of the practice fairways, and so on."

STAN LEONARD ... returns favor

Beating Hawks Was Easier

Toronto Fans Embrace Leafs

TORONTO (CP) — It looked like Red Square on May Day. The crowd estimates ran from 50,000 to 150,000 as the Toronto Maple Leafs—this year's Stanley Cup champions—marched their way up Bay Street Wednesday in a storm of ticker tape.

"Beating Chicago wasn't as much trouble," shouted George Armstrong as he bulled his way through the crowds around city hall.

He carried the Stanley Cup in his arms.

The parade honoring the first team to bring the cup to Toronto in 11 years began half an hour late at the foot of Bay Street.

It was a lot later than that by the time the open cars inched through to city hall where the civic welcome awaited.

The "Go, Leafs, Go," chant that rocked Maple Leaf Gardens during the hockey playoff resounded from the crowds packed 30 deep on each side of Bay Street.

Police cordons broke and every available officer in the city was sent to the scene to keep order.

TOPS ROYAL RECEPTION

"Even the reception for the King and Queen, back in 1939, couldn't compare with this," said controller Don Summerville.

Tough Tim Horton was painting by the time he made the city hall, where a civic reception was to be held.

"We had to get out of our convertible way down Bay Street and fight our way the rest of the route," he said.

A number of persons collapsed and were treated by first aid attendants. The temperature was close to 74.

Only the band of the Queen's Own Rifles and the first few cars of the parade made it through the press before the crowd swallowed up the rest.

"You've had the greatest reception in Toronto's history," Mayor Nathan Phillips told the players.

LACHESSE PRACTICE

Jokers senior "B" lacrosse club will hold a practice tonight at 7 p.m. at Memorial Arena. New players are still needed.

THE PALMER METHOD

by Arnold Palmer

PUT YOUR RIGHT HAND TO GOOD USE

Your follow-through and finish are accurate indications of preceding swing actions. These who don't complete the swing after impact no doubt have slurred down before the ball was struck, robbing themselves of power. Often this takes the form of stopping the swing with the right hand.

Sometimes, we call this the right hand "clutch." But whatever its name, it's harmful. Don't allow the right hand to restrict the clubhead's action through the ball. Feel that its power is being used against a left side firm enough to resist but not stop it. Swing to your hands are well above shoulder level at the finish.

Read about swing from start to finish. The pamphlet's yours for 10c and a stamped, return envelope sent to Arnold Palmer, c/o this newspaper.

Moss Still 'Out'

LONDON (AP) — Stirling Moss was reported maintaining a slight improvement Wednesday night although he still was unconscious 48 hours after crashing in a race.

The condition of the 32-year-old auto-racing ace is "satisfactory," said a spokesman at the hospital in Wimbledon. Moss suffered injuries to his head, shoulder and left leg in a spectacular 100-mile-an-hour crash at Goodwood on Monday.

Earlier in the day a hospital statement said Moss was sleeping a little lighter and there were no complications.

One aspect of Moss's conditions took a turn for the better Wednesday. A hospital spokesman said: "The bone injury to his left shoulder has been confirmed by X-rays, but does not appear to be of a serious nature."

Officials Plan Dried Egg Clamp

OTTAWA (CP)—A tightening of federal regulations governing the sale of egg products—particularly aimed at dried eggs—is being considered by the health department.

The move is a bid to stamp out the growing incidence of a mild form of food poisoning called salmonellosis. The ailment is a minor bowel infection which could be dangerous in infants.

Dr. C. A. Morrell, head of the food and drug directorate, said yesterday the ban is not aimed at the commercial foods which contain dried eggs—cake mixes, for example—but at the basic egg product.

A health department report mentions egg mixes and frozen dessert pies as two food preparations which can become contaminated with salmonella through unpasteurized dried egg products.

But a spokesman for the frozen dessert pie industry said yesterday few firms use such products in their pies and no cases of the food poisoning have ever been traced to frozen dessert pies.

The law would ban the sale of an egg product which has not been proven free of salmonella, the bacteria responsible for the illness.

April Melody
Revue Tasty Dish
By BERT BINNY

The revue, April Melody, produced by the Victoria School of Theatrical Arts, opened before a full house at Oak Bay Junior High school last night.

Like a sandwich with all the meat at the centre, April Melody is at its best in the middle. There is a delightful novelty tap with Betty Clarke and Kathleen Reid; the interpretive dance tomorrow, with Jane Bowring and Peter Kelch, already selected for the honor performance at the current dance festival; a saucy, sophisticated item, High Society, with Marilyn Sommers and Francis Christian; and Peter Kelch in a Russian trepan and Sylvia Mobey as El Torsador.

Three tasks To cap it all there is producer, choreographer and instructor Bob Everfield, in Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue. Three of the small dancers were impressive—Deborah Lovett, Janice Tooby and Glenine Smith.

April Melody goes on again tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m.

Yachting Season Starting
A 50-yacht predicted log race from Vancouver will wind up a day of yachting planned by the Royal Victoria Yacht Club during sailpast ceremonies which start at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

They will arrive about 5 p.m. and best spectator spot will be Cattle Point.

Participating in the sailpast, which marks the official opening of the 1962 season, will be sailing craft from nine different classes and power boats.

The address at the flag-raising ceremony will be given by Commodore R. Hamilton Smith.

Cello Featured
Saint Saens' concerto for cello in A minor will be the featured work in an hour-long program of recorded music in the music room of Victoria Public Library at 5 p.m. today.

OAK BAY BEACH HOTEL
On Saturday evening, April 28th, we will serve our Annual Canadian Dinner. Followed by Mrs. MacDonald's slides of the various Canadian provinces. On Sunday evening we will enjoy a one-act comedy "The Henrys" followed by the Windsor Players under the direction of John Dean.

Visitors Score at Festival

By BERT BINNY

Ballerinas of just about every age and size—singles, doubles and groups—were on stage at Oak Bay Junior High School as the dance festival ran through its second day yesterday.

Visiting dancers from far away places were all to the front in both morning and afternoon classes.

Pentition's Denise O'Brian took the ballet solo class, 11-and-under, and Francesca Corle of Seattle won the nine-and-under division over 10 Victoria competitors. She is quite a phenomenal performer at the age of nine.

Deborah Lauree McIntyre was second to Miss Corle and Donna Maureen Turner third.

ONLY ONE

Only one pre-junior "A" five-and-under, contestant was in evidence, Pamela Gail Ferguson. It was the same in the "B" section, seven-and-under, Susan Blades being the sole entrant.

The only other solo class in the morning, demi-character over 15, was won by Lydia Wait with Jean Elizabeth MacKay second.

FIVE FIRSTS

In the doubles and groups the Wynne Shaw Studios scored five firsts. The Vivian Briggs Studios and the Katherine Costain School each had a first and second. The Helen Turvey School from Edmonton, Alta., won the authentic folk dance doubles, 15 and over, with performers Terry Sue Hooper and Carolyn Sloane. Carol Brown and Jennifer Costain of the Katherine Costain School were second.

The Florence Clough Studios and the Victoria School of Theatrical Arts each had one first place.

COMPLETE ARTIST

An outstanding event in the afternoon which, for a time, lifted the proceedings out of the realm of competition was the Wynne Shaw Dance Studios' Lonely Child, entered in the ballet group division, 15 and under.

"This," noted adjudicator Miss Janice Milott, "was one of the most charming things I've seen."

Wendy Bowes as the Lonely Child proved herself not only a fine dancer but, also, every inch the complete artist in mime.

LARGE CAST

She was excellently supported by a large cast of dancers and, in particular, by Susan Hemmings as a Rich Girl.

This performance received one of the highest marks given; a fine, fat 84.

Three classes of ballet solos were decided during the afternoon.

Sharon Kirk won the over-15 class, followed by Lydia Wait.

Another visiting dancer, Susan Passmore of Edmonton, won the 13-and-under ballet solo division over 12 competitors. Bracketed second were Ceredwyn Richards and Wendy Walker.

The 15-and-under section was taken by Janet Davis of Ladysmith with Toni Adamson second.

Afternoon classes with single entries were demi-character groups, 11-and-under (Wynne Shaw Studios); ballet groups, 11-and-under (Wynne Shaw Studios); solo demi-character, 11-and-under (Margaret Anne Milott).

Also with lone entries were demi-character groups, 15-and-over (Victoria School of Theatrical Arts); national dances, 15-and-over (Helen Turvey School); interpretive dances, 15-and-over (Wynne Shaw Studios); interpretive dances, 15-and-over (Wynne Shaw Studios); interpretive dances, 15-and-over (Wynne Shaw Studios).

CONSIDERED

The Vivian Briggs and Wynne Shaw Studios tied in the class for ballet groups, seven-and-under (Victoria School of Theatrical Arts); national dances, 15-and-over (Helen Turvey School); interpretive dances, 15-and-over (Wynne Shaw Studios); interpretive dances, 15-and-over (Wynne Shaw Studios).

Several awards were announced: Dances to be distributed at the home performance. The Canadian singer, Ceredwyn Richards and Wendy Walker, The Canadian singer, Ceredwyn Richards and Wendy Walker, The Canadian singer, Ceredwyn Richards and Wendy Walker.

An award of $25 was won by Lydia Wait.

Trail of Murdered Bishop

By JAMES K. NESBITT

Rev. Charles John Seghers, one-time Bishop of Vancouver Island, with headquarters in Victoria, who was murdered in Alaska in 1887, is the subject of a doctoral dissertation now being researched and written by Rev. Gerard Stecker, S.J., of the University of Seattle.

Father Stecker has been working here some weeks in the provincial government archives, and in the archives of St. Ann's Academy, and Seghers' life and work on this Island.

Already he has done research in Ghent, Belgium, where Bishop Seghers was born, and at the North American College in Louvain, where learning all he can of Bishop Stecker, S.J., of the University of Seattle.

In Louvain Father Stecker came across a letter Bishop Seghers wrote, in Dutch, from his archiepiscopal palace on Victoria's Yates Street, to his former superior: "Dit is aller-schoonste eiland der wereld," which, translated into English is, "This is the most beautiful island in the world."

After a trip over the Malahat to Cowichan and Duncan, Father Stecker says he agrees with the long-dead bishop. Father Stecker visited the old stone church on Combs Hill, where Bishop Seghers probably said mass in the long ago.

MISSION WORK

Bishop Seghers came here in 1873, the second Bishop of Vancouver Island, taking the place of the first Modeste Demers. He remained until 1879

when he became Archbishop of Oregon City, returning here in 1885 as archbishop-bishop of Vancouver Island. In 1886 he went on mission work to Alaska, and was murdered there the next year by his attendant Frank Fuller. From his research, Father Stecker believes Fuller was a paramour. He was sentenced to 10 years at McNeill Island penitentiary in Puget Sound, and there are stories he was eventually murdered in Portland. Father Stecker will try to prove this, one way or another.

Kinsmen Spare Tree! Old Elm Wins Reprieve

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP)—The Kinsmen's Club has heeded pleas from the self-appointed guardian of a 130-year-old elm tree and will delay cutting it down pending an examination by tree experts.

The ancient elm is on a site the service club wants to use for a $100,000 community centre, but contractor Robert Edward Rockbrune, 61, doesn't agree the old should give way to the new.

Robert Sledziewski, chairman of the club's building committee, said Wednesday the Kinsmen would "do everything possible" to save the tree.

Man with High Ideas Sets People Staring

Lydia Lashes Demolition Plan

Former Victoria MLA Mrs. Lydia Arsene yesterday flayed city hall plans to demolish a row of View Street stores and construct an off-street parking garage.

"It is a pity the city hasn't found a location where the stores should be demolished, rather than those stores which are good for another 20 years," she said.

MAKE ROOM

Mrs. Arsene rents one of the stores which the city plans to tear down to make room for the parking facility.

"A good architect would construct an arcade over these stores instead of demolishing them and wiping out the rents and business tax revenue which could be gained."

"In looking at other stores, those downtown are so unsanitary they are shocking, and all for double the rent here."

"Their toilet facilities are filthy beyond description, some have no back ventilation, some with the only opening (at the rear of the store) being a door."

BY END OF JUNE

"A shocking condition for a city like Victoria!" City officials said it is likely tenants of the stores will be given notice to vacate by the end of June.

Fall Ends Camping Holiday

A hillside fall near the Sooke pot-holes yesterday ended an Easter holiday camping trip for a Victoria youth, and sent him to hospital with a broken arm.

David Odgers, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Odgers, 2088 Shelbourne, was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital at 1 p.m. by Cpl. Louis Dempsey, Sooke RCMP detachment. He was later reported admitted, and in good condition.

Mrs. Odgers said David had gone camping with five friends.

The boys had been climbing a cliff near their camp and were on their way down, they told Mrs. Odgers, when a big rock on their route gave way.

David lost his footing and broke his arm falling to the bottom of the slope. The rock followed him down, split on another rock, and part of it just missed his legs.

By BOB PETHICK

A Bermuda-born man who each year at this time gets a sudden urge to build and fly a kite will celebrate Victoria's centenary in this novel fashion.

For Raymond Aitken, 23, 1070 Davis Street, the reason for this strange compulsion comes from his homeland, where Good Friday is known as kite day. "Everyone builds and flies kites. It's sometimes difficult to see the sky for them," says Mr. Aitken.

NO PIZCES

And when it comes to building kites Mr. Aitken thinks big. His present model, which he launched successfully from Beacon Hill Park yesterday, measures eight feet, nine inches high, by six feet wide, and is made up of 101 glued pieces covered in near-transparent tissue paper.

The young B.C. Forest Products employee built the kite in three weeks, but this, he says, would not have been possible without the help of his wife, Juanita.

How does it feel to "go fly a kite?" "Good," says Mr. Aitken. "There is an art to getting it into the air and once it is flying you get the feel of the power of the wind. Kites can be made to do tricks and hummers fastened on the rim of the kite give off a loud buzzing noise when the kite zooms."

SHORT LIFE

Unfortunately the life expectancy of a kite is something insurance companies would not look favorably on.

The problem of keeping it in one piece always occurs during the last six feet of the landing operation—it drops. "Someone has to be standing by to grab the sticks," says Mr. Aitken. "The paper skin is easily punctured."

Last year around this time Mr. Aitken said he built a small kite and went to fly it at Wilkies Beach.

"The people stopped swimming to watch. It caused quite a stir."

Given the blessing of the centennial committee, he plans to fly the kite during good weather on his days off as his novel way of celebrating the centennial.

Oak Bay 'Must Take Initiative'

If Oak Bay wants the Turkey Head breakwater improved, it must take the initiative in enlisting federal help, Victoria MP Al DeB. McPhillips said yesterday.

Mr. McPhillips said he had suggested a course of action to the municipality back in 1961 when the breakwater was completed.

Commenting on claims by Oak Bay Coun. Fred Robinson that the breakwater protects only the dock installations and offers no protection to boats at anchor, Mr. McPhillips said: "There is plenty of protection. That breakwater is 1,130 feet long, according to my recollection."

He said Oak Bay could seek federal aid for a beautification plan if it would enlist support of the Capital Improvement District Commission, then make a joint representation to Ottawa.

"It is not up to the federal government to take the initiative in this matter," he said.

Coun. Robinson had told works committee federal crews restoring the eroded beach at Glenlyon Preparatory School could be used to extend the breakwater.

Budget Submitted

$736,710 Asked To Police City

New Ambulance To Cost $15,000

Victoria police commission has asked city council for $736,710 to police the city in 1962.

The budget approved by the commission yesterday includes $15,000 for a proposed new police ambulance.

It would represent an increase from last year's actual expenditure, which was $675,108.32.

CLOSE LOOK

City council, sitting as its own estimates committee, will take a close look at the police estimates — and the estimates of other departments — at meetings on May 1 and May 4.

City council then will decide whether or not to prune down the estimates, and by how much.

DIVIDED

The police commission's budget is divided as follows: Administration, $54,839.00 (1961, $47,841.39).

Protective services, $532,036 (1961, $507,489.63). Biggest increase in this category was police salaries — up from $464,131.94 to an estimated $491,578.00.

INVESTIGATION

Crime investigation, $97,567.00 (1961, $87,980.10). Radio, $2,000 ($1,924). Buildings, $18,453.00 ($17,200.13).

Detention and custody of prisoners, $6,475 ($6,360.72). Inquests, $2,300 ($2,198.43). Sobriety tests, $700 ($700.50). Medical examinations $200 ($156).

TRAFFIC FILMS

Public relations, $3,935.00 ($1,141.00). Police training, $1,625.00 ($530.63). Traffic films and supplies, $80 ($36.73). Escort of mental patients, $1,500 ($1,450.04).

Clutesi Contradicted

Indians Dispute Voting Charge

Spokesmen for Indian bands in the Greater Victoria yesterday disagreed with Indian artist George Clutesi's claim that many of his people won't vote in the June 18 federal election because they are afraid of losing their reservation rights.

"I'm a voter and I'm going to exercise my right to vote," said former West Saanich chief David Elliott.

"I don't know where Mr.

Still No Decision On Two Paperbacks

City prosecutor Angus Smith still hasn't made up his mind whether two paperback books given to city police are obscene.

"I haven't decided yet," he said yesterday. "I have read one of the books and the other one I am part way through."

"I hope to decide this week."

The two books, one dealing with racial problems in South Africa, were given to police by a private citizen last week.

Mr. Smith is reading the books to decide whether police should take action.

Final Phase

Wiring Going Down

Final phase of the $3,500,000 program to put wiring underground in a 30-block downtown area is nearing completion.

The work was started by the B.C. Electric before it was taken over by the provincial government. It is being completed by the new B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

BY SUMMER'S END

A spokesman for the BCPHA said yesterday the work will be "substantially completed" by the end of the summer.

Some 322 buildings have to be connected to underground wiring and 200 power poles and 68 miles of overhead wiring removed.

Of this, 148 buildings have been connected and 23 poles removed.

BY YEAR'S END

Removal of the poles and connection of buildings will continue through the summer and is scheduled for completion by the end of the year.

Nature's Power

Power exerted by growing things is demonstrated by these shaggy mane mushrooms (coprinus comatus) poking up through black-topping on sidewalk in 3900-block McNall. Provincial botanist Dr. Adam Szwedinski said edible mushrooms are common in fall, but are known to appear at this time. His explanation: spore was carried in load of topsoil placed on nearby lawn and travelled underground to spot. — (Colonist photo.)

Downtown in Color

Bank First to Champion Integrated Paint Plan

The city hall scheme to plot integrated color schemes for downtown buildings was praised last night by a prominent downtown businessman who plans to have his building repainted.

"I like the color scheme on city hall and I think the survey is a very good idea," said A. E. Walters, president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce and manager of the Main Victoria branch of the Bank of Montreal.

A LITTLE UNATTRACTIVE

"My own building is a little unattractive and I am studying ways and means of improving it."

"I plan to seek advice from city hall on what colors might be suitable and would tie in with the new scheme."

A discussion of the scheme has been tentatively scheduled for the next meeting of the chamber's tourist trade group.

OUTLINED BY CLACK

The scheme will be outlined by Roderick Clack, head of the city's planning and inspection division, who suggested the beige and white colors used to repaint city hall.

Mr. Clack will plan color schemes for downtown buildings to suit the buildings and to harmonize with neighboring buildings.

Superintendent Says:

Blaming Sooke Official Termed 'Ridiculous'

A department of education spokesman yesterday ridiculed the charge that blame for the dispute which has split Sooke school board lies with district schools superintendent F. A. McLellan.

Former school board chairman John Williams, whose resignation was accepted on a disputed 32 vote during a stormy board meeting Tuesday, yesterday issued a statement:

LONGSTANDING

"The crux of the present trouble is centred around the long-standing desire of (Mr.) McLellan to break up the present administration of the Belmont, Elizabeth Fisher Schools."

"Ridiculous," said a department spokesman. "The school board makes the decisions. Trustees don't have to act on the recommendations of the district superintendent."

WONT INTERVENE

"The responsibility is the board's and no board can pass this off on the district superintendent."

The department will not intervene in the dispute, which it considers to be a matter "between the board and Mr. McLellan."

Mr. Williams said: "It is significant to note that this officer (Mr. McLellan) was unable to obtain support of the trustees representing the attendance area of these two schools. The support for his plan has come from trustee Ronald Weir, who is no longer a resident of the school district, and from three trustees representing the Milnes Landing attendance area."

SHORT TERMS

"It is also noted that two of these trustees have served on the board for periods of one and three months respectively. Ratepayers and parents of the heavily-populated Belmont and Elizabeth Fisher attendance areas have thus had the administrative policy of their schools decided by non-residents of the immediate area."

A by-election to fill both Mr. Williams' and Mr. Weir's seats is likely to be held in June.

FAIR EXCHANGE: Local people who have already been to Seattle's world fair report prices have soared way past the top of that 600-foot space needle — or so it seems.

One joke going the rounds about the prohibitive price for parking near the fair is: "Don't pay if your car is more than four years old. Let the lot keep it—it's cheaper that way."

And a sign in a store window reads: "Buy Now—Don't Grieve Me! Buttons. Were 95 cents, now $4.25."

BATTLE HYMN: Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate David Green points out the June 18 federal election day is also the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo.

David would kind of like to think that Prime Minister Diefenbaker is going to be in the same boat as Napoleon!

Banks Give $14,000 To Hospital Drive

Five local bankers dug deep into their companies' coffers yesterday to come up with a total of $14,000 as a contribution to the St. Joseph's Hospital building campaign. Campaign chairman Dr. Peter Banks said the banks' gifts brought the fund to $127,000—almost half of the $250,000 being sought by the hospital for an extensive building and remodeling program. Bank managers who turned up with cheques were Robert Gunning, Toronto-Dominion; A. E. Walters, Bank of Montreal; I. C. Dinning, Imperial Commerce; Reginald Wilde, Royal Bank, and T. L. McMaster, Bank of Nova Scotia.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace B. Courtney leave today from Vancouver aboard the Ss. Orsova enroute to England. They will stop in Algeciras, Jamaica, Haiti and in Bermuda where the Courtneys lived for five years. Reaching England they will first stay with Mrs. Courtney's brother-in-law and sister, Col. and Mrs. William Greany in Lyndhurst, Hampshire, and then will go on to London. They will be joined by Mrs. Courtney's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wightwick of London when they leave for a three-week motor tour of England and Scotland. During their absence until late in June, their London Avenue home will be occupied by Mr. Lieut. and Mrs. Allan Sherwin who have recently arrived from the Atlantic Coast.

Sherry Party

Mrs. Charles Savage entertained at her Falkland Road home at a sherry party on Wednesday morning for popular bride-to-be, Miss Ina Corbett. Mrs. Eric Brinkworth was co-hostess. A set of sherry glasses in the Stewart-Hampshire pattern was presented to the guest of honor. Guests were Mrs. Olle Corbett, Mrs. E. E. Corbett, Mrs. Barry Brinkworth, Mrs. Chester Eastwood, Mrs. Jack Speck, Mrs. Clyde Savage, Mrs. W. Robinson, Mrs. Fred Grassmuth, Mrs. Ted Collins, Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Jack Small, Mrs. Dave Riddell, Mrs. Richard Porter, Mrs. Gordon Houston, Mrs. Fred Hawes and the Misses Carole Gardier, Vinnie Brinkworth, Elizabeth and Brenda Savage.

Tea and Shower

Miss Ina Corbett, bride-elect was honored at a tea and shower at the Deal Street home of her aunt, Mrs. E. E. Corbett. As it was Miss Corbett's birthday, shower gifts were contained in a large birthday cake decorated in pink and white. The table was centred with pink tulips and pink candles. Guests included Mrs. W. Corbett, mother of the bride, and Mrs. A. Wallace, mother of the groom. Grandmother of the bride, Mrs. M. Castley, travelled from Duncan as did Mrs. L. Talbot, Mrs. C. Green and Mrs. E. Walde. Others were Mrs. D. Gardier, Mrs. W. Robinson, Mrs. C. Savage, Mrs. E. Watson, Mrs. J. Elliott, Mrs. F. Pomeroy, Mrs. J. Howes, Mrs. F. Young, Mrs. G. Mounce, Mrs. J. Piper and the Misses C. Gardier, E. Piper and M. Andrews.

Announce Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. E. Sudhues, 4634 William Head Road, Victoria, announce the engagement of their daughter Caroline Rae to Mr. William McGivern, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. McGivern, Gibsons. The wedding will take place on May 19 in Vancouver.

Lady Smith Visitors

Mrs. Harry Kaake and daughter Janet Davis of Ladysmith are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Stevenson, 2225 Windsor Road. Janet, a pupil of Wynne Shaw dance studio, is a contestant in the Victoria Centennial Dance Festival.

Musicians Present Program

Junior Musical Arts Society closed the season with a spring recital at Newstead Music Hall.

President Joan McCandlish presented to Mrs. T. H. Johns, president of the board of directors, a cheque to be used for the scholarship fund.

The program included piano solos by Cheryl Richards, John Fryer, Lynne Maggs, Jill Hampton, Lois Pepper, Judith Champion, Janet McCandlish, Carol Drummond, Mary Lou Foster, Dianne Grist, Robin Hampton, Suzanne Russell, Judy Soper, Wendy Aaronson, Robin Wilmet, Diane Crowther, Bruce Fryer, Darlene King, Rosemary Fryer, Margaret Kaiser, Faye McConnell, Elizabeth Townsend, Fern Chapman, Claudia Edwards, Bonnie Pepper, Jacqueline Court, Joan McCandlish, Beverly Hunter, Colin Bonneau and Carolyn Grace Heal.

Piano duets were played by Judith Champion and Janet McCandlish, Robin and Jill Hampton, and Faye McConnell and Elizabeth Townsend.

Vocal solos were rendered by Bette Cosar accompanied by Miss J. Butler; and Jill Paver accompanied by Miss P. Paver.

Mary Howland played an arpeggio solo accompanied by Joan McCandlish and David Foster played a clarinet solo accompanied by Mr. M. Foster. Violin solos were played by Jill Paver accompanied by Miss P. Paver, and David Foster accompanied by Miss D. Francis, and Barbara Ann Court accompanied by Mrs. G. Bates.

Joan McCandlish presided with Colin Bonneau as pianist and David Foster as Program chairman. A reception was held at the close of the concert at which Mrs. N. McCandlish was convener. The next meeting will be in September.

San Francisco Trip For Honeymooners

Miss Joyce Evelyn Watkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Q. Watkins, 1625 Chandler Avenue, was married last Saturday evening to John Donald Sambrooke, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Sambrooke, 3591 Savannah Avenue.

The wedding took place in St. John's Anglican Church, at Colwood with Rev. D. A. Hatfield officiating. Easter lilies and sprays of spring blossoms decorated the church. J. Nixon was organist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride chose a full-length gown of pure silk taffeta. The sweetheart neckline was enhanced with embroidered lace and a bustle bow emphasized the back of the skirt which extended into a slight train. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses. Matron of honor, Mrs. Jack Galbraith wore a yellow taffeta dress with organza overskirt in tone. Miss Lois Earl, bridesmaid, wore an identically styled dress in coral shade. Both wore rhinestone tiaras and their flowers were in tone with their gowns.

Best man was Larry McKinty and ushering guests to their pews were Norman Dicks, and Ray Watkins, brother of the bride.

Reception following the wedding was held in Olde England Inn where yellow daffodils and iris and spring flowers decorated the bride's table which was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake.

Harold Price, uncle of the bride proposed the toast.

For her travelling costume the bride chose a white pleated sheath dress, a green coat, white pattered hat and white accessories.

DEMOLAY

The Mothers' Auxiliary to the Oak Bay Chapter, Order of Demolay, will hold a Rummage Sale on Friday, April 27, at 7 p.m. at the CCF Hall, 721 Courtney Street. Any article for sale, such as good used clothing, bedding, china, books, can be delivered to the hall anytime after 4 p.m., or call GRanite 7-1089, Evergreen 5-0155, or any member of the auxiliary, for donations to be picked up.

Quiet Wedding At Cowichan

A small wedding with only the immediate family in attendance was solemnized in Lake Cowichan United Church when Lillian Linda Griffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Griffin of Lake Cowichan was united in marriage with Mr. Henry Thomas Smith, son of Mr. H. T. Smith of Sooke and Mrs. E. Smith of Elliott Lake, Ontario.

Rev. T. Bulman officiated. The bride wore a beige suit with green and white accessories when she was given in marriage by her father. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Maid of honor, Miss Judy Griffin chose a green suit with white accessories and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Best man was Mr. T. D. Sheppard. Following the ceremony, a dinner was held at the home of the bride's parents. The new Mr. and Mrs. Smith then left on a honeymoon to Port Renfrew, B.C.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Smith of Sooke and Mrs. A. Harbison of Victoria, the bride's grandmother.

Deep Resentment

Indian Women 'Insulted'

By RUKMINI DEVI

Canadian Press Correspondent
BOMBAY (CP) — The days when Indian women prided themselves in being "dutiful shadows" of their men seem to be fast disappearing.

The female sex here is in a defiant mood, and right now it is reflected in a furore raised by women over an alleged act of male "slander."

There have been country-wide protests against a passage in a Gujarati - language examination paper placed before students in arts at Bombay University. Candidates were asked to translate into Gujarati an English passage which, the women say, was a "deliberate" insult to womanhood.

The offending passage read, in part:

"I have watched women closely. They have no hearts like men. They do not suffer like men. Women are anxious to show their bodies, and whether they are walking or standing or sleeping, they are anxious that their bodies be seen, and how can men guard themselves? ... It is better to be blinded by staring at the sun than to look at a woman."

Newspapers were deluged with angry letters from women readers protesting the examination paper. "The passage is a clue to the working of our men's minds," wrote a college girl. "They would like to humiliate us on every possible occasion."

"Indian males seem to live in a land of make-beliefs," says another letter. "If they think they can insult us and get away with it they are mistaken. We shall teach them a lesson."

University - educated women called for a protest meeting to voice their resentment. The All-

India Women's Conference was approached with a proposal to take up the question with the Bombay University authorities. Petition have been sent to women MPs to raise the subject in Parliament.

Stars Have Answers To Beauty Problems

By LYDIA LANE
Telegram News Service

Q—Will you please give me a good reducing diet. I need to lose 10 pounds, but I break my diet after the first few pounds. I know I'm overweight, and I need to do something about this if I am ever to have any dates. (Barbara B.)

A—Anna Maria Alberghetti has a lovely figure now, but there was a time when her weight was a problem. "I loved for cream and spaghetti," she said. "And I could not reduce until I had made up my mind being thin meant more to me than eating my favorite foods. Once I had made this decision I lost eight pounds in three weeks. I ate plenty of lean meat, green vegetables, fresh fruit, and I gave up all starches and desserts." You must know what bad habits are causing your problem. Learn to give up these foods and you'll be able to reduce the way Anna Maria did.

Q—I am 50, but no one thinks I look my age. I am interested in staying young, and I would appreciate your opinion on how much help a woman can expect from cosmetics that promise to take away wrinkles. (Mrs. A. McD.)

A—Corrective cosmetics can do much to keep a youthful appearance. They can benefit discoloration, dryness, large pores and fine lines, but these formulas work best when a woman obeys the laws of good health—plenty of rest, exercise and well-balanced meals.

Q—I am 15 years old, and my face has broken out. Is make-up to cover blemishes harmful? My mother thinks it is. (Caroline J.)

A—Joel Lansing has this answer for your problem. She suggests that you and your mother consult your doctor. I am sure that he can recommend one of the medicated make-ups that are designed for skin problems such as yours.

Q—My problem is my nails. They split and peel. I've gone without polish for several months but it doesn't seem to help. I'm so envious of anyone with lovely nails for I always notice hands. (Dorothy B.)

A—Try using nail polish and coat your nails with a plastic finish. If you add a fresh coat of polish every other day, you may find a solution to your problem. "I couldn't grow nails until I kept them covered with polish," June Lock.

Variety Program Saturday

Junior League Day is Saturday, April 28 and will be held at the Hudson's Bay Company store.

Various activities are planned for the whole family including arrangements by Mrs. Norma Fitzsimmons, sketching by Peggy Packard, a display by the Victoria Handweavers Guild, card sketching by Ellis Pryce-Jones, pottery display by Gilmar studios, a kiddies' carousel ride, a magician act by Mr. Frank Meirfield and a Victoria fish and game club fishing display.

Fifty members of the Solarium Junior League will be on duty during the day to assist the public in contests and displays.

Between 2 and 4 p.m. tea will be served in the Douglas Room and strolling models will show the latest fashions. The Solarium chorus under Miss Norma Douglas will be singing.

Miss Margaret Munn is convening the day, assisted by Miss Betty Emery and Mrs. Juanita Garden. Mrs. Sheila Curtis is in charge of the contest.

A highlight is a contest that will feature guessing the number of dimes in a large umbrella located in a display window. The winner gets a 19-inch portable television set.

Hall Crowded for Farewell Party

The Rev. G. R. Easter closed a signally successful ministry extending over 16 years with the First Baptist Church, Victoria on Easter Sunday, April 22. Large congregations gathered morning and evening. At the morning service five candidates were baptized and three young children dedicated.

Mr. Easter pointed out that one of the first candidates baptized by him in Victoria was a granddaughter of Mr. Alexander Clyde who started a Baptist work in 1874, and that two of the candidates baptized by him last Sunday were great-grandsons of Mr. Clyde.

Mr. and Mrs. Easter leave Victoria for Preston Ontario, and will begin their ministry with the First Baptist Church of that city on Sunday, May 6.

On Friday, April 13 the lower hall of the church was crowded to capacity with members and friends of the church to express their appreciation of Mr. and Mrs. Easter's ministry and to wish them God speed. Greetings were brought by representatives of the other Baptist churches of the city.

This was followed by words of appreciation from Dr. W. C. Smalley who was general secretary of the Baptist Union of Western Canada during Mr. Easter's student ministry; and by Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Arnold.

Fluffy Apricot Souffle For Pre-Bridal Shower

June, the traditional month of brides, is coming closer, and that means that the whirl of pre-bridal parties, which test the ingenuity of any hostess, is upon us.

Bridal showers are gay and fun, but after brides and bridesmaids-to-be have attended a number of them they can be a bit tedious. What's needed is variety! One hostess, loathe to inflict further expense on guests who had already attended a number of showers, armed herself with lengths of unhemmed towelling and yards of brightly colored yarn. She set her guests to work and the bride-elect went home with a supply of unique, if unorthodox, tea towels.

Something new is needed in the usual shower fare of rich cakes, little sandwiches and ice cream. A suitably pretty and appetizing dessert is an apricot souffle, which is easy on the waistline too, as it has a jelly rather than a cream base. In fact, this dessert is so easy to make and so good to eat that the whole family—men included—will mark it down as a favorite.

For the waistline watchers another suggestion is Pineapple Sunset Salad. This is a combination of pineapple tidbits and tangy vegetable pieces in a grapefruit-pineapple jelly mixture.

APRICOT SOUFFLE
One 3-oz. pkg. apricot-orange jelly dessert, 1 cup boiling

NEW SHOWER FARE—APRICOT SOUFFLE

water, 1 cup canned apricots, strained, ¼ cup apricot juice, 3 egg whites, 1 ½ oz.-can evaporated milk, chilled, 1 tbsp. lemon juice, chopped walnuts. Dissolve jelly dessert in boiling water. Stir in strained apricots and juice. Chill until partially set. Beat egg whites until stiff and whip evaporated milk to which the lemon juice has been added. Combine egg whites, whipped milk and jelly mixture and whip until thoroughly mixed. Make a heavy paper collar for souffle dish and pour in jelly mixture. When jelly is set, remove collar carefully and decorate sides of mold with chopped nuts. (A 6-cup mold may be used instead of the souffle dish.) Serves 10.

PINEAPPLE SUNSET SALAD
One 3-oz. pkg. grapefruit-pineapple jelly dessert, 1 cup boiling water, ¼ cup pineapple juice, 1 cup cottage cheese, 1 cup pineapple tidbits, drained, ½ cup green pepper, chopped, ½ cup celery, chopped.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for the woman who complained because her husband always asks for a glass of water right in the middle of the most exciting part of a TV show. She doesn't know how lucky she is.

My big hummer says, "How about a nice bacon and tomato sandwich with just a little mayonnaise on it—and toasted please?" or — "Gee could I ever go for some of that terrific cheese dip—the kind with the grated onion and anchovies in it."

By the time I get the snack ready the program is over and the next one has started, so I miss part of both.

I've tried preparing in advance, but it doesn't work. He never wants what's already fixed. I've put cheese and crackers at his elbow as well as fresh fruit but he rarely touches it. He always has a yen for something "original." I hope "Gunga Din" sees this. It may help her appreciate a man who has simple tastes.

—SHORT-ORDER COOK
Dear Ann Landers: I have a problem I couldn't possibly discuss with anyone who knows me. It's too embarrassing.

I am a 17-year-old girl — a junior in high school. My parents were divorced last year. My mother didn't want the divorce but my father felt in love with another woman and wanted his freedom so he could marry her. My mother was heartbroken but she agreed.

My father takes me to dinner every other Friday night. He always brings his new wife along. She tries to be nice but I am uncomfortable in her presence. It's a terrible strain on me to be in her company. My stomach gets tied up in knots and I can't eat. I would love to spend a few hours alone with my father, just the two of us, but it seems as if I will never get this privilege again as long as I live. Can you suggest something? — HURTING HEART

Dear Heart: Call your father at his place of business and tell him exactly how you feel. It should not be difficult for him to understand. It would be a mistake to continue these three-cornered Friday dinners if they make you physically ill. Surely your dad can arrange to spend these few hours every other week with you — alone.

Victorians Assist In Receiving Line

ALBERNI, B.C. — Spring-time tones of her attendants' white feather headpieces and white accessories. They carried pink carnations. Flower-girl, Sandy Ragan wore a dress of ruffled yellow nylon with a yellow rose in her hair. She carried a violet-covered purse.

Rev. Kenneth Knight performed the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Phym, Grandview Road, and the son of the late Mrs. Joan Horvath.

The bride wore a full length gown with tiers of tulle and lace. Her bouffant veil was held by a white carnation and red rosebud headpiece. The same flowers made up the bride's bouquet.

Mrs. Anne McDonald was matron of honor, and Misses Kathleen Maher and Diana Malsterre, bridesmaids. All were in green gowns with white feather headpieces and white accessories. They carried pink carnations. Flower-girl, Sandy Ragan wore a dress of ruffled yellow nylon with a yellow rose in her hair. She carried a violet-covered purse.

Gary Andow was ring-bearer. Danny Horvath supported his brother as bestman, and ushers were Alfred Desy and Joe Van Kooten.

At a reception in Beaver Creek Community Hall, the bride's parents with Mr. and Mrs. D. Nichol of Victoria assisted in receiving guests. Toast to the bride was proposed by Don Ragan.

For going away the bride wore a brown suit with green accessories.

Among out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Nichols of Victoria, the groom's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. C. Dumville, Rosanville, Saskatchewan; Mrs. W. Andow, Newton, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. W. Bell, Nanaimo, and Pete Colyn, Youbou.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Fleck

There are a few first-rate writers around who'll never win national fame, whose names don't appear in gossip columns, whose books are never discussed by literary critics. They do their work quietly, adding daily to their professional skill and craftsmanship.

One of them is Fredric Brown, author of The Five-Day Nightmare (Dutton). He's a mystery writer but has also written other books—straight novels, short stories and science fiction. I've read a number of his 27 books and haven't been bored by any of them.

The Five-Day Nightmare is just as a string and practically all plot. There's no way of telling about it without giving the story away; but I can say

He Proposed

"When Harry was about 30," Brown writes, "he married for the first and only time—of all things a chorus girl, beautiful and dumb, three inches taller than he. He'd met her on a business trip to Los Angeles and had fallen for her at sight. Within a week—and with no passes—he proposed to her. "When she accepted him, he said he was returning to Phoenix for a few days and they'd be married when he got back. He got back and they were married one morning at city hall, after which he took her to his hotel. "Unromantically and without giving a reason he sent her up to his room ahead of him and said there was something he must do right away and that he'd join her soon. She went up to the room and waited. "An hour later a messenger delivered an envelope to her. It contained $80,000 in cash—every cent he'd been able to realize back in Phoenix by converting or borrowing against his assets at that time—and a brief note that told her he loved her very much but didn't see how she could possibly love him, and that if by any chance she was interested in his money here it was, every cent he could raise.

Worst Bawling

Trial Put Back

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crown prosecutor William Craig said Wednesday the trial of 72 sons of Freedom Douthorpe leaders charged with conspiracy will not be held for at least a month.

He told suburban Burnaby police Magistrate C. C. Bell the trials could not be held for several weeks because crown exhibits in the case are being examined at the RCMP crime laboratory at Regina.

BOMB CHARGE
The accused, members of the Freedomite sect's fraternal council, are charged with conspiracy to intimidate the Parliament of Canada and the British Columbia legislature.

The leaders, also charged with conspiracy to commit arson and plant bombs, were rounded up in surprise police raids at several Freedomite settlements in southwestern B.C. last month.

FOURTH WEEK
Magistrate Bell reminded them for the fourth consecutive week pending Assize Court trial at Nelson. They are being held at Oakalla prison farm in Burnaby.

The B.C. Kootenay country has been plagued for years with widespread bombing and arson.

Miffed Mac May Find Diefenbaker Difficult

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press

It will be "salesmanship at the summit" when Prime Minister Macmillan and Diefenbaker meet in Ottawa next Monday.

Two leading ministers, Duncan Sandys and Edward Heath, have already made pilgrimages to present the British case on Europe.

Macmillan is likely to find Diefenbaker a reluctant customer, though perhaps more accommodating than a few months ago.

Putting things plainly, British ministers are still a little miffed about Canada's attitude toward United Kingdom membership in the European Economic Community. The Whitehall view, conveyed to this reporter by a man in touch with ministerial opinion, is that official Ottawa has been "totally negative" on the issue.

Perhaps both countries have sources for complaint.

The Canadian government has an election coming up and is legitimately worried about what may happen to Canadian trade when Britain becomes a cord-carrying member of the European club.

On Britain's side, it is galling to take the painful decision about negotiating for entry into the European Common Market and then to be reproached in newspaper reports and elsewhere, with breaking up the Commonwealth.

Perhaps the most powerful argument advanced by the pro-European bloc is that Britain must be strong if it is going to hold the Commonwealth together, and that it can't be strong without Europe.

South Africa Act

Canadian Role In Ouster Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's role in the withdrawal of South Africa from the Commonwealth was described Wednesday by the leading spokesman for Canada's mineral industry as "displeasing."

NO FURBAC COMMENT

J. R. Bradfield, newly-elected president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, started the closing session of the institute's 64th annual meeting with the remark: "Most of us deplore the part our Canadian government played in South Africa leaving the Commonwealth."

Amid applause, the president of Noranda Mines Limited stood up. After the motion he declined to make further public comment.

GRAVE MISTAKE

The stage had been set by an address by South African mining magnate H. F. Oppenheimer, who told South Africa's "expulsion" from the Commonwealth was "a very grave mistake." Mr. Bradfield spoke in a brief reply.

EXPRESSIONS CONCERN

In other business winding up the three-day meeting attended by some 1,800 delegates, retiring institute president J. B. Macdougall of the University of Saskatchewan expressed concern at the shrinking number of young trained engineers and scientists entering the mineral industry.

Don't Smoke May 31 Eric Martin's Dream

Health Minister Eric Martin's fondest dream is that a single cigarette will be puffed in B.C. May 31.

Provincial cabinet has decreed it Non-Smokers' Day. Even the smokers in the cabinet went along with the proposal.

"I am convinced smoking is harmful to the individual as well as being a fire hazard," said Mr. Martin—the No. 1 member in the Non-Smokers' Association of Canada.

John D's Downfall Mac's Private Hope

LONDON (CP) — The Observer, in an article by political correspondent Mark Arnold Forster, says British Prime Minister Macmillan will arrive in Ottawa next weekend "uneasily conscious of the impasse" and that Prime Minister Diefenbaker is defeated in Canada's June 18 general election.

BIG OBSTACLE

The reason, he says, is that the present government of Canada is still the biggest obstacle to Britain's entry into the European Common Market and that joining the market is still the British government's

Dramatic Race

Car Saves Plane Lost Pilot Guided In

BURKE FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A Burke Falls man drove his car at 90 miles an hour this week to guide an aircraft to safety in pre-dawn darkness.

Glen May, 24, drove through the town's traffic blinking his headlights to guide pilot Fred Harris of Centralia to an emergency landing strip at nearby Emerald, 30 miles south of North Bay.

SAFETY IN FRONT

On the open highway he sped at 90 miles an hour, keeping in front of the aircraft.

"We were just breaking up a country when we heard the plane," May said. "It was raining like mad and I didn't take us long to realize that if it was a plane, the pilot was in trouble."

BECAME LOST

Within seconds May had started the rescue operation. Through it all not a word was exchanged with Harris, a commercial airline pilot, who became lost during a night flying course in the single-engine aircraft.

May and neighbor Ross Payne, 25, ran for flashlights when they heard the airplane. "The plane was so low over the town we could see it in the flashlight beam. We signalled to him and he signalled back. We didn't know any Morse code but Mr. Harris told us later he just seemed to know we were going to help him."

While May ran for his car, telephone calls went through to police and Ernest Thorne, manager of the department of transport airport at Emerald.

At the airport Thorne placed May's car and another at one end of the strip with their headlights on. Then he drove to the other end in his own car, turned it around and put on his parking lights.

SAFETY LIGHTS

In came the little airplane, touching down right in the middle of the runway.

Harris, who took off later in the day to return to Centralia, said he became lost when his radio failed in heavy overcast and rain en route to North Bay. He came down out of the clouds to see the lights of Burke Falls and was preparing to set down on the highway when the flashlight started blinking below.

"He was a pretty grateful fellow after he was in," said Thorne.

"It was a perfect landing. He was a good pilot. He was calm and cool, fortunately."

Phosphate Galore In Peruvian Desert

LIMA (Reuters) — Vast new phosphate deposits which may prove to be the world's largest have been uncovered as the result of a fruitless $25,000,000 search for oil in Peru's barren Sechura Desert.

Geological reports indicate the total amount of phosphate ore in the ground exceeds 600,000,000 tons. The ore is unusually rich and easily mined, the reports say.

If true, the Sechura field would be the largest single phosphate reserve in a world which needs new sources of fertilizers.

Discovery of the field is also expected to give a needed shot in the arm to the poor Peruvian economy.

The Sechura deposits, located south of Peru's only producing oil fields, were found partly by accident and partly through the initiative of George Nicol of Atherton, Calif.

Prospectors, reporting the lack of oil in the region, mentioned the existence of phosphate rock. These reports caught the eye of Nicol, who had had experience in developing phosphate properties. He visited the area, confirming his suspicions of the area's commercial potential, and formed a Peruvian company, Minerales del Peru.

The company, which has since been taken over by Midpex Industries Limited of Montreal, acquired claims to more than 1,758,000 acres of land.

The deposits are said to be of special interest to Japan, which now imports a large percentage of her phosphates from Florida. The Peruvian fields are easily accessible to the Pacific Ocean through a port site on Bayovar Bay.

The Sechura deposit ranges from 130 to 170 feet in depth, says a Canadian geologist, Dr. D. S. Robertson of Willowdale, Ont.

Tories Will Raise MPs' Pay—John D

OTTAWA (CP) — The Citizen says Prime Minister Diefenbaker is reported to have told a Progressive Conservative caucus last week that a re-elected Conservative government would raise MPs' salaries to $15,000 a year from $10,000.

The newspaper says some MPs had complained about the inadequacy of the present pay level.

It says judges' salaries would be increased at the same time. Judges have not had a pay raise since 1953; the last raise for MPs and senators was in 1955.

Stuffed Day-Old Ducklings Sold as Toys in Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Thousands of day-old ducklings are being slaughtered in Japan, stuffed with sponge rubber, and exported to Canada as toys for children, a Toronto Humane Society official said this week.

George Hume, general manager of the Toronto branch of the society, demanded that the federal government refuse to allow the toys to be imported into Canada.

He has sent one of the ducks to Ottawa for examination by veterinarians. The toys may be carrying a disease, he said.

'Tarzan' with Gun Sought by Police

LAKE WILCOX, Ont. (CP) — A "wild man" who may also be a quick-change artist is sought by police in this farming area just north of Toronto.

John Newstead, 15, called his mother when a man wearing a loincloth and long, flowing hair garlanded with leaves, ran past him.

Anti-Polio Bid

Oral Vaccine Drive Planned

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — This may be the first Ontario city to have a mass polio immunization program with the new Sabin oral vaccine.

Dr. James Anderson, city medical officer of health, said Monday the liquid vaccine—fed to adults on a sugar cube—and to infants by spoon—will not be made available for general use until May 7.

A mass immunization program will be carried out in city schools and factories, and at five public centres May 15-16 here.

Plans also are under way to carry out mass immunization in Northumberland and Durham counties with a combined population of 80,000, during the week starting May 14.

Oshawa and Ottawa start similar programs in June.

NO CONFUSION

Dr. Anderson described Sabin as "a very successful vaccine," and said he expects no confusion here—there was in parts of the United States—over the comparative value of Salk and Sabin vaccines.

"Salk gives immunity in the blood stream while Sabin treats the places where the virus breeds—in the intestinal tract. In other words it gives added protection."

Canadians Overseas

Stick-in-Muds

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian students are stick-in-the-muds, says vivacious, freckle-faced Shirley Raphael, 24, back in Montreal after nine months' work and travel abroad.

A 1961 graduate of Sir George Williams University, Shirley landed what she calls a "plum job" in France through the Association Internationale des Etudiants en Sciences Economiques et Commerciales, a student exchange program operating in 27 countries.

Only about 60 of the almost 6,000 young people who took part in the project last year were Canadians. While at present the project covers only Quebec and Ontario universities, efforts are being made to extend it to Western Canada and the Maritimes.

Shirley's job was at the tourist information bureau of the Cote d'Azur Airport in Nice. A special employees' pass permitted her on the landing field.

When a VIP was arriving, I'd rush out and wait. Then the reporters would stream onto the field and I would make like another reporter, asking questions and scribbling notes. I couldn't just stand there like a dummy."

Celebrities she met in this way included Sir Winston Churchill, Picasso, Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis and Sammy Davis, Jr.

After the three-month job was up, Shirley teamed up with an American girl to travel "on the cheap" through Europe.

"We usually hitch-hiked and every person who gave us a lift seemed to feel we must be starving and insisted on buying us a meal. We didn't look like much—I lived in slacks for four months—but actually I gained 15 pounds on the trip."

In Rome, the two girls crashed the set of Cleopatra by pretending to be French actresses. "I happened to know the name of the head casting director and told the guard I had an appointment with him. The guard was a very conscientious sort and insisted on conducting us right to the director's office."

The director's questions: "Where are your photographs? Do you sing? Dance?" left the pair nonplussed. "I just mumbled something about just having finished my last picture and not being sure I wanted to commit myself further, as we edged out the door fast," Shirley said with a laugh.

After Italy, the girls travelled back class to Greece. "There we were, sleeping outside with the chickens and carrying our own food. But we saw a lot of islands," Israel, where they took care of chickens, weeded gardens and worked in kitchens, was the last country they saw before sailing for home.

Shirley believes that Canadian girls lack the spirit of adventure shared by their English and Australian cousins.

"They're afraid to travel alone. But I found AIESEC members in every country were most hospitable and it was like having a friend in every place you visited."

READY!

Newspaper Advertising Readers Are Ready To Buy!

Newspaper readers are attracted to your advertising because it interests them. They are more apt to be live, "ready-to-buy" prospects than is the case with readers and viewers of other advertising media.

Live prospects are easier to sell. They actually shop the newspaper ads—they want to be sold, and are looking for information to help make a buying decision. Take housewives, for example—research proves that 75% of them check the ads in the daily newspaper before making their main shopping trips of the week.

It's that kind of readiness on the part of newspaper readers that can mean ready sales for you!

THE DAILY COLONIST

Gambler Dated Chief's Wife

By JOHN LEBLANC
TORONTO (CP)—The blonde wife of Police Chief W. Jack Shrubbs of Peterborough told the royal commission on crime Wednesday that for some months she was meeting and getting frequent telephone calls from gambling boss Vincent Feeley while her unsuspecting husband was a corporal in the Ontario Provincial Police anti-gambling squad.

'NOT RIGHT THING'
Mrs. Gladys Shrubbs, speaking barely above a whisper, testified that she gave no information knowingly to Feeley. "Was paid no money by him and quit seeing him after she realized it was 'not the right thing to do,'" though he kept telephoning her for another year.

KNEW NOTHING
Chief Shrubbs, a key commission witness who has been ripping the lid off purported associations between organized gambling — including Feeley — and political and police officialdom, apparently knew nothing of the 1957 association until another inquiry witness spilled a hint of it recently.

Mrs. Shrubbs testified she spoke to her husband for the first time about it last week, at the request of commission counsel Roland F. Wilson.

FOLLOWED HUSBAND
She took the stand right after her husband had completed three days of headline-laden testimony that included recitals of big-money bribe offers from Feeley and others to co-operate with gamblers and of reported leakages of confidential information from high levels in the OPP.

The tough Shrubbs was not in the commission chamber while his wife testified. Subpoenaed witnesses have been barred from hearing testimony of others by Commission Chairman Mr. Justice W. D. Roach.

ONLY RESULT
One of Shrubbs' last pieces of evidence yesterday was to agree with Liberal party counsel B. J. MacKinnon that it seemed the only result from a long series of confidential reports to superiors on police-gambler tieups was that some of the contents of these documents seemed to be getting back to the gambling fraternity.

BIG KILLING
The biggest known first printing of any book was the 2,500,000 copies of Mickey Spillane's The Big Kill in 1954.

Police Bribes Case Pair Remanded

SASKATOON (CP) — Two Saskatoon men were remanded until May 2 when they appeared in magistrate's court Wednesday on separate charges of offering bribes to police officers. Counsel for G. Patrick Sommerville, 30, suspended Crown attorney in Saskatoon, and Steve Kaylich, 29, asked that the Crown proceed immediately with preliminary hearing.

The charges were laid last December following a police raid on a University Drive building.

$26,450 Approved

Beaches, Parks Bill Increased by $3,000

On the eve of city council's final onslaught on the 1962 budget, members of Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee approved a budget some $3,000 higher than last year.

Final total of the committee's proposed budget was $26,450, compared with last year's budget of some $23,000. Included in the 1962 total is $3,000 to buy materials which Victoria North Kiwanis Club has offered to build into a new concession building at Hamsterley Park.

One unexpected increase was the cost of constructing a dam at the outlet of Beaver Lake to control the water level. Original estimates for an earth dam were $300, but a concrete dam which the committee ordered will cost another $350.

The committee appointed Coun. Joseph Casey, chairman, city parks supervisor Herbert Warren and city engineer James Garnett to inspect the Kiwanis Club's plans for the new concession.

Petition Opposes Chapel Zoning

Property owners in the 1100 blocks of Fort Street and Meares Street have petitioned city council to remove special zoning regulations on Fort Street property which now permit operation of a funeral parlor.

The petition was delivered to city hall yesterday by Linn A. Gale, 1037 Craigdarroch Road, who was prominent in opposition to the rezoning last year.

In a covering letter, Mr. Gale said almost all owners of property in the area have signed the petition.

The land, two lots at 1147 and 1153 Fort Street, was rezoned from apartment use to a special zone permitting operation of a funeral parlor, on the application of J. E. Chaplin, proprietor of Chaplin's Funeral Chapel, 980 Quadra Street.

Mr. Gale said no funeral chapel has been established on the lots and said "possibly Mr. Chaplin has wisely considered it is better to take a thousand-dollar loss and remain where he is now located, than to move to a neighborhood where he knows he is not welcome."

Revenge on Reserve Homespun 'Horrible'

1862—Birth of a City

By J. T. Jones

"Horrible," said the little headline — probably the favorite word in The Daily British Colonist of 100 years ago.

Anything horrible had a running start for a place in the crowded columns of Amor De Cosmos' thriving little paper. It was part of a formula (90 per cent hard news, 10 per cent horrible) that he used to hammer one competitor after another into submission.

Axe murder in San Francisco, beheadings in China, bizarre crimes in England — his readers obviously lapped them all up.

But best of all, of course, were horrors right here at home, and on April 26, 1862, he thought he had a live one.

"Horrible," it was headed — but we've already said that. "The rumor of a horrible occurrence at the Indian reservation reached us yesterday. It is said that on Wednesday a white man in a canoe came to the Indian reservation and encamped near the Chimsaan village; during the afternoon he invited a Chimsaan Indian and his wife to his tent and gave them a painful of molasses and some biscuits, which they carried home, partook of themselves and gave to their family and friends.

"During the night all who had eaten of the food were taken violently ill and before morning four of them had died. The remainder recovered after suffering excruciating agony for many hours.

"This story the Indians told to several gentlemen who are old settlers and who understand the language perfectly. The supposition is that the white man, who is at present unknown, placed poison in the food for the purpose of revenge on himself for a real or fancied injury inflicted by one or more of the victims. The matter requires a rigid investigation."

That's the end of the story, apparently for the time. If there was an investigation, nothing was reported on it. Anyway, it was a slow week for news.

There was a grim little story the same day, about a man named Henry who was sitting on the gunwale of a small schooner in the harbor here while the steamer Gov. Douglas was being docked. A gust caught the steamer and drove it toward Henry, who tried to fend it away from the schooner with one foot.

Unfortunately he forgot that his other leg was still dangling over the side, and when the two ships bumped, it was in between. The leg had to be amputated, but Henry recovered.

Ferry Saves Trio in Sea

VANCOUVER (CP) — The CPR ferry Princess of Vancouver rescued two men and a woman after their fishboat foundered near Bowen Island late Tuesday.

The ferry altered course to pick up the trio when the fishboat was spotted awash with the three clinging to its mast. They were not identified.

32 B.C. Colonist, Victoria
Thursday, April 26, 1962

Amor Spurred Civic Pride

When Amor De Cosmos came to Victoria in '38, it was just a village around a Hudson's Bay Company trading establishment, with the stockade still standing. That was the year he founded The (British) Colonist. And that was nearly full five years before Victoria was incorporated.

The Colonist's founder-editor, De Cosmos, was one of the moving spirits behind incorporation. He persisted in goading the reluctant government towards this goal. Not everyone was so firmly convinced as he that Victoria could only make progress and achieve the amenities its people deserved by becoming a city with an elected mayor and aldermen.

Many were after gold, and just passing through on their way to the Cariboo. The big Enterprise and the smaller Caledonia made trip after trip to New Westminster with hardly standing room. Some of them came back rich. Later in 1862, one miner lurched down the gangplank of the Enterprise here shouldering a sack of pure gold — 100 pounds of it.

Henry had an encouraging example to think about. A man named E. King, former deck-hand on the steamer Fort Yale, had also lost a leg when the ship blew up on the Fraser River a year earlier. He had been in the Royal Hospital here ever since, but was finally discharged.

He left right away for San Francisco aboard the steamer Brother Jonathan, where he intended to get a cork leg, learn to use it, and then head for the gold fields of the Cariboo.

The number of people arriving here by ship after ship was astonishing. The Jonathan brought 250 passengers on one trip; the Hermann, 800. Considering that Victoria's population at the time was about 8,000, the impounding must have had quite an impact.

There will be a special, 100th anniversary story by Napier Moore, the former editor of Maclean's Magazine, one-time Victoria resident. Long-time newspaperman and Canadian diplomat Norman Macdonald will have a feature in the supplement.

Capable staff writers have researched the past to produce bright and colorful stories every bit as intriguing as the most exciting present-day news material. And sometimes more so!

Subscribers will receive their Centennial Edition by courier delivery, and they will be able to order additional copies for mailing to friends and relatives out of the city. Special, bright Centennial theme wrappings are provided for mail copies.

300 Make Pay Appeal

Dr. H. F. Angus has been named chairman of a board of reference to hear an appeal for more money from 300 B.C. government professional engineers.

The engineers' recent raise was less than the group has been seeking.

Other members of the board are deputy labor minister W. H. Sands and Dr. Henry C. Gunning, representing the engineers.

The story of this fight for self-determination, and dozens of others of those rough-and-ready days are contained in the special Centennial Edition to be published May 23. Of special interest will be the contributions of Cecil Clark, whose true stories of adventure have been appearing

LIFE of the PARTY!

CHARLIE ALWAYS REMEMBERS

Depend on Charlie never to forget, even when his firm suddenly makes him fly up to Prince George on the very weekend we're celebrating a birthday. And sure enough, it was the long distance call he made that eventually got the party mood going.

Charlie is always the life and soul of a party — and how he hates to miss one! As long as he can reach a telephone, bless him, he very rarely does.

After 6 p.m. each evening (and all day Sunday) long distance rates drop by about one quarter. Vancouver to Kamloops, for example, can cost as little as $1.05.

Why don't YOU phone somebody near or dear tonight, when long distance rates are lower?

Conference Stresses 'Profound Change'

CAMPBELL RIVER.—The fact that Indians now can vote in a federal election, called "a profound change in the status of Indians that has gone almost unnoticed," is being emphasized at the current conference on Indian community life.

A steering committee set up as the conference opened was told by conference chairman Rev. David Powell of St. Andrew's, Powell River, in emphasis to all discussion groups that Indians can vote in the federal election June 18.

Committee chairman is Rev. Oliver Howard of the United Church. Members are James Sewell of Alert Bay, Joseph Elliott of Duncan, Rev. W. Robinson of Ahousat, Harold Wells of St. Timothy's in Vancouver, superintendent Robert Henderson of the United Church mission board and Mrs. Flora Dawson, teacher at the Klingsome Inlet reserve.

The conference is sponsored by the Anglican and United churches.

V. R. Curtis of the Nanaimo branch of the department of citizenship, stressed the vote will not deprive the Indian of his land and reserves.

Jim Jampolsky of Vancouver, director of the Indian affairs education branch, said the department can make no immediate expansion of aid to Indians in the primary and secondary school levels.

He said, however, there are long-range plans in this area and his branch is eager to help any Indian who progressed to university standard.

$250,000 Damage In Quebec Blaze

QUEBEC (CP)—A three-alarm fire did at least $250,000 damage to three waterfront buildings before being brought under control Wednesday.

No one was hurt.

The blaze destroyed the warehouse of the Disciples of Emmaus—a lay group that sells used clothing and distributes the proceeds to the poor—and another belonging to the Quebec department of natural resources.

More than 40 persons living in rooms above the government warehouse or in the damaged boarding house next door were left homeless.

12-Year-Olds Too Young To Marry

WESTVILLE, N.S. (CP)—

A resolution to Nova Scotia Council of Women asking the provincial government to raise the minimum age for girls to be married with parents' consent to 16 from the present 15 will be considered here today.

Under existing law girls under 15 years of age must have their parents' consent to be married.

Fast Thief Loots Car Of Stole Worth $600

A $600 mink stole was part of the loot taken from a car in Royal Jubilee Hospital parking lot last night.

Mrs. Edna Marson, 3971 Cedar Hill Cross Road, told city police her car was entered while it was in the lot between 7:30 and 8 p.m.

Entry was gained by a ventilator window. Besides the stole, a bottle of liquor was taken from the glove compartment.

Two rare Connemara ponies—natives of Ireland—arrived in Victoria earlier this week for their new owners, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carpenter, 4060 Cedar Hill.

The gelding and mare traveled by ship from Ireland and rail across Canada.

They are believed to be the only horses of their breed in Canada.

Students of University School will attend the Seattle world fair early next month.

India's high commissioner to Canada, B. N. Chakravarty will arrive in Victoria May 9 for a three-day visit.

Working swiftly in the middle of the day, thieves yesterday broke into a Douglas Street store and stole $132 from the cash register.

Management of Victoria Photo Supply, 1015 Douglas, reported the theft to city police at 1:55 p.m.

A candidate for the Victoria federal riding will be chosen at a meeting of the Progressive Conservative party at a nomination convention in the Britannia Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, 1616 Blanshard Street, at 8 p.m. today.

Cabinet has appointed Coun.

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—Hon. Howard Green, federal external affairs minister, said Wednesday that Canada's world prestige is growing.

Mr. Green spoke at a meeting which nominated Harris Rogers to seek re-election in Red Deer constituency.

St. Laurent Confused

MONTREAL (CP)—Louis

St. Laurent, former prime minister, told a reporter Wednesday that he couldn't make any prediction on the outcome of the June 18 election.

"The situation at this stage of the campaign," he said, "is too confusing to comment."

Totems For Tourists

PORT ALBERNI—A special Alberni Valley totem is being designed for sale to tourists interested in obtaining souvenirs of their visit to this district.

Ald. E. L. Hammer, council's representative to the Chamber of Commerce, said crippled carver Wilson Williams, formerly of Polly's Point and now living at Bamfield, has been commissioned to design the totem.

Ald. Hammer said the tourist bureau, jointly operated by Port Alberni and District Chamber of Commerce and Alberni Board of Trade, will be open for five months, starting May 1.

For this year only it will be operated in the vacant cafe section of a service station at the junction of Alberni and Port Alberni highways.

Plans are to move the portable building which served for the past two years when the Alberni access road is relocated.

Truck Smashes Royston Store

ROYSTON.—Brake failure sent a huge trailer truck smashing through the front of the Royston General Store Tuesday evening, wrecking the store's drugs, bread and vegetable sections.

SUPPER HOUR

Fortunately, no one was hurt. The accident occurred at 6:30 p.m. and the store is closed daily from 6 to 7 p.m. for the staff's supper hour.

A short, steep hill on the Island Highway begins in front of the store and takes a 90-degree turn to the left after a few feet.

RCMP in Courtenay said driver Clint Dawson of Courtenay told them the truck had gone only about 100 feet up the hill when he found he was unable to hold the vehicle with the brakes.

It rolled backward around the corner and through the store's big glass front window, ending up six feet inside. Some of the store's loss was insured.

Devastating Flashlight Missile-Killer

A weapon more formidable than the intercontinental ballistic missile is on the threshold of development. It is called Laser, for light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation.

Scientists and engineers who have worked on Laser claim it might well become the new generation of space weapons. Some Lasers develop more than 3,000,000 watts for a super-powered radar beam no wider than a pencil.

The U.S. Army Signal Corps Research and Development Laboratory, Fort Monmouth, N.J., Bell Telephone Laboratories, Westinghouse Electric and Radio Corp. are working on several applications of Laser. The Signal Corps developed the three-megawatt Laser.

Gen. Curtis LeMay, U.S. Air Force chief of staff, was referring to Laser recently when he told an audience the weapons of the future may well strike with the speed of light. They may be able to neutralize earth-based intercontinental missiles either on the launching pad or as they streak toward targets, LeMay said.

There seems to be logic in his view: Light moves at the rate of 186,000 miles a second. It wouldn't take long for it to reach an ICBM travelling at the relatively slow speed of 15,000 miles an hour.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev might have been talking about Laser or something like it when he boasted publicly of the "fantastic weapons" still to come.

How does Laser work? It has the ability to make light travel almost perfectly parallel rather than spread out. Concentration of rays magnifies the beam's power and intensity immeasurably.

Scientists believe Lasers can be developed so that their beam will be hotter and brighter than the sun's surface.

Most Lasers developed so far are only about the size of a flashlight, with energies of a few kilowatts or less. But their beams, emitted in brief bursts, can be focused to cut through a razor blade.

General Electric engineers have used the Laser to strike holes in diamonds. The holes were cut in 200-millionths of a second. The light beams smashed against the diamonds with explosive force, generating temperatures of about 16,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

"If we can use a light beam to cut diamonds, we can use it to cut anything," says Dr. J. Herbert Holloman, head of GE's engineering laboratory in Schenectady, N.Y.

Build Lasers large enough and you could use them to knock down missiles or install them on satellites to burn up hostile satellites, as Gen. LeMay said.

The outspoken general coupled his remarks with a plea that the United States not let the Soviet Union be the first to develop such a weapons system.

Soviet Law To Include Coexistence

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev called Wednesday for a new constitution to write into the Soviet Union's basic law the fundamental principles of its foreign relations, including peaceful coexistence. He also asked for the inclusion of more freedoms for the people.

The Supreme Soviet then adjourned a three-day meeting by designating him to continue running the country at the head of a 71-man cabinet and to head a commission to write a replacement for the 1936 Stalinist constitution.

The cabinet which Khrushchev presented, following the routine resignation of the old one, kept the same faces in the same places with few exceptions.

The chief change was to give the comparatively unknown Konstantin Pysin the thankless job of agriculture minister. He replaces Mikhail Olshansky, who had tried for two years to whip Russia's stubborn low-yield agricultural problem.

The old constitution in outlining the conduct of foreign relations, Khrushchev said, "speaks only of the procedure for proclaiming war and concluding peace."

He called for a new charter accenting the "ideological heritage" of Lenin and providing "guarantees for the democratic rights and freedoms of the working people."

Lack of Laos Coalition Impairs Truce Group

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Open warfare may resume in Laos anytime unless the Laotians agree on a compromise government, Canadian High Commissioner Chester Ronning warned yesterday.

Ronning, speaking at a meeting of the Press Club of India, said the three-nation international supervisory commission is unable to investigate any breach of the ceasefire agreement in Laos or any complaints about violations.

The commission is composed of Canada, Poland and India. "The influence of the commission has been restricted entirely to the fact of its presence in Laos," he said.

While ceasefire violations in the remote Southeast Asian kingdom have been of a relatively minor nature, the international commission continues to be placed "in a most unsatisfactory situation," Ronning said.

Giant Steel Firms Double First-Quarter Earnings

CHICAGO (UPI) — Inland Steel Co. followed U.S. Steel yesterday in reporting first-quarter earnings double those of the same period last year.

Inland board chairman Joseph Block reported a first-quarter net of $16,639,602, or 94 cents a share.

In the first quarter of 1961, a recession period, the company had a net of $8,143,592 or 46 cents a share. The record net income for the company for a first quarter was $18,743,934, or $1.07 a share, reported in 1960.

U.S. Steel board chairman Roger M. Blough reported Tuesday in New York that the company will pay its regular quarterly dividend of 75-cents a share out of first quarter earnings of $55,800,000—double the figure for the first quarter last year.

Inland was the first firm to rescind an announced steel price hike of $6 a ton two weeks ago. U.S. Steel, the first firm to announce the price

Moon Hit Certain For 'Dead' Ranger

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The Ranger 4 spacecraft—its butterfly-like wings apparently clipped by a power failure—headed Wednesday for a certain collision with the moon.

Scientists at Caltech's jet propulsion laboratory, which built the capsule, said there is no doubt it will slam at 6,000 miles an hour into the moon's dark backside early this morning.

The Ranger's power failure left the scientists fairly certain that the 730-pound capsule was unable to push out its solar panels.

ANNA WILLOUGHBY
... not convinced

On Confession

Let's Get Truth Says Cousin

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs. Anna Willoughby, cousin of Charles Heathman, said Wednesday she still isn't convinced that Heathman told the truth when he confessed last week to the murder of 10-year-old Vernon Donald Orliey.

Heathman appeared in police court Wednesday on a charge under the Mental Hospitals Act and was remanded five days for psychiatric examination. (See Page 7.)

Sake of Parents

"For the sake of the parents of the slain boy and for all concerned he should receive this treatment," she said. "I feel he needs it, just as hundreds of other people need it."

Mrs. Willoughby went to Seattle with Heathman after he made his confession to the Vancouver Sun Friday. She said she didn't know about the confession then.

When she learned Vancouver police were looking for Heathman, she said, she telephoned police here and told them she and Heathman would be returning to Vancouver on Tuesday or Wednesday at the latest.

Asked Commitment

"I told them that as soon as we arrived I would be committing him to Crease Clinic. Police said that would be fine. He wanted me to commit him. I presume he still wants that."

"I don't know whether his confession was true or not. I don't know whether he confessed because it was true or because he wanted the money. I saw him in the jail in Seattle, and I still don't know if he is telling the truth."

"I was horrified when I saw what came out in the paper," said Mrs. Willoughby. "It's such a horrible, tragic affair. What must the parents be going through?"

New Playland Site Sought On the Gorge

The promoters of the Sherwood Forest medieval playland scheme are negotiating with private interests for a new site on the Gorge.

"In view of the negative attitude registered by Saanich council regarding the Sherwood Forest project to be developed on city-owned property, and insofar as it is our hope to be in business by July of this year, the principals are instructing Mr. (Milton) Tisdale to investigate an offer to acquire another property on the Gorge waters," one of the firm's partners, Hugh A. Martin, has written to city council.

Mr. Martin, president of Marwell Construction Company Ltd. of Vancouver, told the Colonist yesterday the site under consideration is "to the west of the Redwood Park Motel."

Mr. Tisdale has been conducting negotiations with Victoria and Saanich municipal officials over plans to lease a 9.6-acre site along the Gorge, between Millgrove and Tillamook.

APPLICATION REFUSED
While still negotiating with city officials over the terms of a lease for the land, Mr. Tisdale applied to Saanich council to have the area rezoned to permit the Sherwood Forest development.

Forest development. The application was refused. He was also unable to win approval of city officials for the financial arrangements for developing the playland.

WEST OF MOTEL
The main thing now is that he get psychiatric treatment so we can find out the truth," she said in an interview.

APPLICATION REFUSED
While still negotiating with city officials over the terms of a lease for the land, Mr. Tisdale applied to Saanich council to have the area rezoned to permit the Sherwood Forest development.

Island's Power Lines Cut By Rig on Passing Ship

QUADRA ISLAND — This island was left without electricity last night after power lines across Seymour Narrows were cut. A 150-foot oil-drilling rig from Galveston, Tex., aboard the converted freighter Cuff II, snagged the four power lines, cutting them and pulling down wooden towers supporting the lines. B.C. Hydro officials say it may take a week to restore normal power to the island's 244 residents.

Abandon Ship Call Heard After Crash

ROTTERDAM (AP)—A Dutch shipping agency last night received radio broadcasts telling of a collision between two ships in the North Sea off Cape Finisterre.

One ship radioed that her crew was abandoning the vessel. The other said she had taken a big hole in her bow and called for all ships in the area to come to her assistance.

The Dutch agency reported it had monitored a radio message from the Greek tanker Kinasos. The message from the 32,232-ton ship said identified vessel and fire had broken out aboard.

The message said the crew was abandoning the ship.

The agency then heard a message from the 7,563-ton Ghanaian motor vessel Anshora River. She radioed that she had been in collision with an unidentified tanker.

The Anshora River said a big hole had been opened in her bow and she was taking on water.

See going Dutch Tug were headed to the area of the reported collision, the agency said.

ALGIERS (UPI) — French security forces, fearing mass Moslem reprisals against Europeans, kept close watch yesterday over the native quarters of Algiers and Oran.

Police sources said the tempers of Moslems in the two biggest cities in Algeria are near the "breaking point" because of the daily bomb-and-bullet attacks by the outlawed European Secret Army Organization.

Reinforced security patrols stood guard near the teeming Moslem Casbah in Algiers.

PROVOKING MOSLEMS
The OAS campaign is aimed at provoking Moslems into retaliation and forcing intervention by French security forces in hopes of wrecking the Franco-Algerian rebel cease-fire and President de Gaulle's program for an independent Algeria under Moslem domination.

Algerian nationalist leaders urged Moslems to refrain from violence to avoid jeopardizing the agreement reached at Evian in March. But ominous cracks in the tight Moslem discipline were beginning to show.

In one of the worst incidents, a mob of enraged Moslems attacked Europeans on the fringe of the Casbah in Algiers following an OAS bombing which killed two Moslems and wounded 20 other persons.

"It will cost about £100 to start the case," he explained. "I'm hoping to have enough money saved by the end of the year to see it through."

Since his trouble with his father—details of which he refused to discuss—the earl has worked as a laborer, bartender, doorman and stunt man in the movies.

He even has played the hapless professionally. His colonial office duty is distributing official papers to various offices. He is paid £10 a week.

Blast Echoes Round World

U.S. Tests Regretted But Russians Blamed

LONDON (AP)—The United States' resumption of nuclear tests in the atmosphere Wednesday touched off a mixed chorus of denunciation and disapproval, regret and moral support.

'Middle Range' Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States fired the first explosion in its new nuclear test series in the atmosphere near remote Christmas Island in the Pacific at dawn Wednesday. It was a middle-range weapon dropped from an airplane.

The brief Atomic Energy Commission announcement gave no details. But other sources said word from Nuclear Task Force 8 on the scene was that this first of about three dozen U.S. shots expected to be touched off in the next two months was successful.

MINIMUM FALLOUT
The AEC sought to assure the people of the world that fallout from the U.S. would be held to a minimum.

Intermediate range is described by the AEC as equal to the explosive power of more than 30,000 tons and less than 1,000,000 tons of TNT—a relatively small explosion in the nuclear field. It's expected that the U.S. tests will be limited to 10 megatons, compared with up to 50-megaton blasts in the Soviet series last fall.

To Meet Kennedy

Mac Arrives in U.S.

NEW YORK (CP) — Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain arrived here Wednesday on the first stop of a North American tour during which he will have meetings with Canadian and American government officials.

Of his discussions with Kennedy, Macmillan said: "We have plenty to talk about. There are many problems and we are always in touch all the time but there is nothing like a personal discussion. I am looking forward to them."

Pacific Needs Bigger Fleet

Liberal David Groos, a former RCN captain, drew a bead on navy dispersal of ships when he fired the "opening shot" of his Esquimalt-Saanich federal election campaign at Shawigan Community Hall last night.

Mr. Groos, introduced by Oak Bay MLA Alan Macfarlane, told supporters that the "time has come when more of Canada's navy should be stationed on the West Coast."

"There are almost three times as many ships and men on the East Coast ... let's bring some of them home," said Mr. Groos.

He said the need for escort ships and sub-hunting submarines on the West Coast was "just as great" in the event of war.

He said more ships and submarines were needed to prevent enemy raiders from "stealing into our coastal waters ... let's take another look at the division between East and West. The historic requirement for having to provide ships to escort convoys to Europe ... may no longer exist."

Communists bitterly assailed the move. Pacifists protested. Backers of Washington's decision said the Soviet Union, by its own testing late last year, left the United States no choice.

In Western Europe, many newspapers expressed regret that the United States resumed its test over the Pacific Ocean but laid the blame on the Soviets for not agreeing to an international test inspection system.

COMMUNIST FAULT
"President Kennedy's decision to resume tests in the atmosphere is a tragedy," said Britain's Daily Mirror. "It means the nuclear arms race is again in full spate. But the world must realize the responsibility for this tragedy is not Kennedy's. It is Khrushchev's."

REIN REACT
Communist reaction was quick. Without mentioning that the Soviets broke a test moratorium last September to launch a major series of nuclear blasts, East Germany denounced the U.S. move as "one of the greatest crimes in the history of humanity."

The Russians denounced the tests as a grave crime against mankind.

NEW ROUND
The official news agency Tass also said the U.S. action opened a new round in the nuclear arms race.

At the site of the 17-nation disarmament talks in Geneva, Soviet delegates refused to comment immediately.

In Port William, Ont., where he was visiting, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said he felt "deep regret" that the Geneva conference had reached no agreement on a nuclear test ban. (See Page 5.)

UNDERSTANDING
In Scandinavia, NATO allies Norway and Denmark indicated regret coupled with understanding of Washington's position.

In Stockholm Premier Tage Erlander said Swedish fears that the Soviet tests would touch off a nuclear arms race had been confirmed.

REACT STRONGLY
Japan, the only nation ever to experience the horror of nuclear bombing, reacted strongly against the tests, as it had to the Soviet blasts. Morning papers delayed headlines by more than an hour to splash the news from Washington.

The Tokyo government filed a protest against Washington's earlier announcement that it would resume tests and another protest was planned against the actual firing.

In Latin America, Brazil expressed formal disapproval of all nuclear weapons tests.

Never Wanted Ban Zorin Scolds West

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union charged Wednesday the United States government's final decision to resume atmospheric explosions was proof that the U.S. and Britain never wanted an agreement to ban nuclear weapons tests.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valeriy Zorin told the 17-nation disarmament conference the two Western powers were insincere in insisting on effective international test-ban controls.

The statement was made before government informants in Washington disclosed that the United States had fired its first shot of the new nuclear test series in the atmosphere over the central Pacific.

"Everyone can now see that the United States and the United Kingdom were attempting to wash their hands before the peoples of the world and shrug off the responsibility for the tests," Zorin declared.

The Soviet delegate threatened last week to lead a Communist walkout as soon as the tests began. He did not repeat that threat.

Courier with a Coronet

LONDON (AP) — Britain's colonial office has one of the world's most aristocratic messenger boys—an earl.

"I had a very strict father," said the 10th Earl of Bessborough and Holland Wednesday. "We fell out, but I now have a humble job and I'm happy."

He is John Romer Bessborough Campbell, 42, cut off in his father's will. His official seat is Kilsnash Castle in the Scottish Highlands and he was educated at Eton and Sandhurst.

A former lieutenant in the Black Watch, he was wounded and twice was mentioned in dispatches for bravery in the Second World War.

John, as his friends call him, succeeded to the title when his father died in 1959. The father's will cut him off without a penny.

He successfully claimed about one-third of the estate. Approximately £18,000 ($32,200) was granted him, but it is being held in trust.

The earl wants the trust revoked.

Jails: Soft, Educational And Bit Oily

WAUKESHA, Wis. (UPI)—Waukesha county recently completed construction of a new $1,500,000 "escape-proof" jail and courthouse. Deputies reported yesterday prisoner Lawrence Warlick, 39, used a spoon to dig his way out through two cement walls.

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)—Edward Sparrow, 62, was indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday as one of the masterminds of a $1,000,000 counterfeit bill operation. Sparrow learned photo-engraving while serving a term in the federal prison in Atlanta.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Charles F. Kihura, warden at the Davidson County workhouse, said yesterday that more than a dozen prisoners were each given five days in solitary confinement for refusing to take castor oil during an outbreak of colds.

Carmen Plays To the Gallery With First Shot

BRIGHTON, Eng.—Eamonn Bruen, 27, took his girl friend Carmen Rodriguez, 22, to a seaside shooting gallery to show her how to shoot.

The attendant loaded a rifle and handed it to Carmen who had never fired a gun before. Bruen gave her some instructions. Then, while he was reaching for his own rifle, Carmen swung toward Bruen and said, "Look at this!"

She fired.

Bruen is in hospital with a bullet wound.

BELFAST—Louis Armstrong was given a swinging Irish welcome when he arrived for the first concert of his 19-day British tour. Thousands lined the sidewalks of Belfast's main thoroughfare, as his bus slowly paraded to a hotel behind a truckload of jazzmen.

Young Canada Gives $310,000 to UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A cheque for $310,000, most of it collected in Hallowe'en outings last year, was presented to the United Nations Children's Fund Wednesday by the children of Canada.

The cheque was turned over to the international organization by 16-year-old Rosanne Richman of Brooks, Alta., and 10-year-old Joel Thayer of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. They represented some 350,000 children from 1,500 centres that took part in the campaign.

Mrs. Adelaide Sinclair, a Canadian, who is deputy director of UNICEF, received the cheque at a ceremony in an 18th-floor conference hall at UN headquarters.

The Canadian ambassador to the UN, Charles S. A. Ritchie, welcomed the two children and said he was pleased that the children of Canada, in the interests of world understanding, had raised such a substantial contribution to UNICEF.

The total collected—$50,000 more than last year's contribution—amounted to almost half the $630,000 contributed by the Canadian government for 1961.

Last of Peronist Wins Erased by President

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentine President Jose Maria Guido Wednesday night wiped out the last remaining election victory of supporters of exiled dictator Juan Peron. He said "the return of Peronism could have meant civil war."

The president spoke on a nationwide radio and television broadcast.

Guido barred the way of Peronists to congress before going on the air by issuing a decree nullifying the March 18 congressional elections in which Peronists took 47 of the seats in congress, about one-fourth. He also

Udal Is Hopeful On Columbia 'Whoever Wins'

WASHINGTON (CP)—Interior Secretary Udal Wednesday expressed hope the winner of the June 18 Canadian general election will speed ratification of the Canada-United States Columbia River Power Treaty.

He told a press conference that because of the Canadian election fight and sensitivity of the Columbia issue, he did not want to make any extensive comments "except to express hope that whoever wins the election will get on with the business of ratifying the treaty and building the dams."

At the same time Udal ap-

ALTERNATIVE DAMS

Last November he stated that if Canada did not soon ratify the treaty, the U.S. government would have to ask congress at this current session for authority to build alternative dams in the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

Udal modified this position Wednesday by suggesting he would be well satisfied if the Canadian treaty is ratified before the end of 1962, so that construction might begin next year.

"If the treaty is ratified by Canada any time this year, none of us will be knocked off our stride in our planning," he said.

AUTHORITY PROJECTS

The U.S. Army engineers will shortly announce its recommendations that Congress be asked to authorize a number of supplementary power projects in the Columbia River basin and Udal said this report will go to Congress before it winds up the session for November congressional elections.

But the U.S. government will ask only for congressional authority to proceed with planning the supplementary projects—not for appropriation of the necessary funds. This would be left until next year.

Udal said the U.S. "course is set" though the position of the government on power development is still "flexible."

Christmas Island

Atoll Old H-Test Site

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

Christmas Island, site of yesterday's U.S. atmospheric test explosion, is a British-owned atoll which is inhabited by friendly natives and harmless lizards, land crabs and rat-like creatures known as jerboas.

Its name comes from the fact that the first European explorer to discover it—Capt. Cook—came upon it on Christmas Eve, 1777.

In 1955 the British began to convert the sand and coral possession into a nuclear testing site. Nine hydrogen explosions were set off there in 1956, 1957 and 1958.

Early this year, Prime Minister Macmillan and President Kennedy reached agreement on using it for the U.S. test series that began yesterday.

miles wide, with numerous lagoons cutting into its land area.

Geographers know it as the world's largest isolated atoll.

During the Second World War, the United States, with British permission, developed it into a key link in the Allied air communication route to the far Pacific. About 10,000 Americans were garrisoned there at one time.

Advance planning for the U.S. tests did not propose any evacuation of the natives inasmuch as they live upwind from the blast site with no anticipated danger from radioactive fallout.

Trial of Murdered Bishop

By JAMES K. NESBITT

Rev. Charles John Seghers, one-time Bishop of Vancouver Island, with headquarters in Victoria, who was murdered in Alaska in 1887, is the subject of a doctoral dissertation now being researched and written by Rev. Gerard Stecker, S.J., of the University of Seattle.

Father Stecker has been working here some weeks in the provincial government archives, and in the archives of St. Ann's Academy, and Seghers' life and work on this island.

Already he has done research in Ghent, Belgium, where Bishop Seghers was born, and at the North American College in Louvain, where learning all he can of Bishop he studied for the missions of far-western North America.

In Louvain Father Stecker came across a letter Bishop Seghers wrote, in Dutch, from his archiepiscopal palace on Victoria's Yates Street, to his former superior: "Dit is aller-schoonste eiland der wereld," which, translated into English is, "This is the most beautiful island in the world."

After a trip over the Malahat to Cowichan and Duncan, Father Stecker says he agrees with the long-dead bishop. Father Stecker visited the old stone church on Comlaken Hill, where Bishop Seghers probably said mass in the long ago.

MISSION WORK

Bishop Seghers came here in 1873, the second Bishop of Vancouver Island, taking the place of the first Modeste Demers. He remained until 1879

when he became Archbishop of Oregon City, returning here in 1885 as archbishop-bishop of Vancouver Island. In 1886 he went on mission work to Alaska, and was murdered there the next year by his attendant Frank Fuller.

From his research, Father Stecker believes Fuller was a paramour. He was sentenced to 10 years at McNeill Island penitentiary in Puget Sound, and there are stories he was eventually murdered in Portland. Father Stecker will try to prove this, one way or another.

Kinsmen Spare Tree! Old Elm Wins Reprieve

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP)—The Kinsmen's Club has heeded pleas from the self-appointed guardian of a 130-year-old elm tree and will delay cutting it down pending an examination by tree experts.

The ancient elm is on a site the service club wants to use for a $100,000 community centre, but contractor Robert Edward Rockbrune, 61, doesn't agree the old should give way to the new.

Robert Sledziewski, chairman of the club's building committee, said Wednesday the Kinsmen would "do everything possible" to save the tree.

Area Battles New Bus Bid

CAMPBELL RIVER—Vancouver Island Coach Lines has run into new trouble in its efforts to find a new site for its local bus depot.

A bid last month to occupy the old Credit Union building on Tenth Avenue was turned down by the village commission because of insufficient space for coaches.

PETITION DRAWN

Now, the company has applied for a location at 13th and Cedar and residents of the area have drawn up a petition which protests "obnoxious" fumes, noise and dirt and danger to small children.

However, since the area is zoned for commercial use, the commission decided Tuesday it could not reject the bid.

No final action was taken since no formal application has been received.

The commission decided not to oppose Western Lines' Topic: Wilds bid to divert water of Thelwood Creek 2½ miles from Myra Creek to the southern end of Buttle Lake for a power plant providing there is no pollution.

District military inspector Hugh Hart is investigating.

The commission named a special committee to choose an airport manager from among six applicants and declined to grant a donation to Glacier View home for elderly people, which has a $2,238 deficit.

ANNA WILLOUGHBY
... not convinced

On Confession

Let's Get Truth Says Cousin

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs. Anna Willoughby, cousin of Charles Heathman, said Wednesday she still isn't convinced that Heathman told the truth when he confessed last week to the murder of 10-year-old Vernon newboy Donald Otley.

"The main thing now is that he get psychiatric treatment so we can find out the truth," she said in an interview.

Heathman appeared in police court Wednesday on a charge under the Mental Hospitals Act and was remanded five days for psychiatric examination. (See Page 7.)

Sake of Parents

"For the sake of the parents of the slain boy and for all concerned he should receive this treatment," she said. "I feel he needs it, just as hundreds of other people need it."

Mrs. Willoughby went to Seattle with Heathman after he made his confession to the Vancouver Sun Friday. She said she didn't know about the confession then.

When she learned Vancouver police were looking for Heathman, she said, she telephoned police here and told them she and Heathman would be returning to Vancouver on Tuesday or Wednesday at the latest.

Asked Committal

"I told them that as soon as we arrived I would be committing him to Grease Clinic. Police said that would be fine. He wanted me to commit him. I presume he still wants that."

"I don't know whether his confession was true or not. I don't know whether he confessed because it was true or because he wanted the money. I saw him in the jail in Seattle, and I still don't know if he is telling the truth."

"I was horrified when I saw what came out in the paper," said Mrs. Willoughby. "It's such a horrible, tragic affair. What must the parents be going through?"

Running Traffic Score

Hotting reminder of the hazards of driving in patrolling city streets today. City traffic constable M. B. Curry's motorbike bears the grim but more on traffic mishaps, which is designed to give unwary motorists a tip to drive carefully. Idea came from Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce traffic safety committee. Figures will be up-dated weekly. (Colonist photo.)

U.S. Tests Regretted But Russians Blamed

LONDON (AP)—The United States' resumption of nuclear tests in the atmosphere Wednesday touched off a mixed chorus of denunciation and disapproval, regret and moral support.

'Middle Range' Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States fired the first explosion in its new nuclear test series in the atmosphere near remote Christmas Island in the Pacific at dawn Wednesday. It was a middle-range weapon dropped from an airplane.

The brief Atomic Energy Commission announcement gave no details. But other sources said word from Nuclear Task Force 8 on the scene was that this first of about three dozen U.S. shots expected to be touched off in the next two months was successful.

MINIMIZE FALLOUT

The AEC sought to assure the people of the world that fallout from the U.S. would be held to a minimum.

Intermediate range is described by the AEC as equal to the explosive power of more than 20,000 tons and less than 1,000,000 tons of TNT—a relatively small explosion in the nuclear field. It's expected that the U.S. tests will be limited to 10 megatons, compared with up to 50-megaton blasts in the Soviet series last fall.

Flying Pickets

Two smiling English women arrive at New York airport to picket Kennedy-Macmillan talks in Washington later in week, in protest of U.S. nuclear testing. They are Mrs. Anne Kerr and Mrs. Judith Cook, leading 18-month-old son. (AP Photo-fax.)

To Meet Kennedy

Mac Arrives in U.S.

NEW YORK (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain arrived here Wednesday on the first stop of a North American tour during which he will have meetings with Canadian and American government officials.

Of his discussions with Kennedy, Macmillan said: "We have plenty to talk about. There are many problems and we are always in touch all the time but there is nothing like a personal discussion. I am looking forward to them."

Pacific Needs Bigger Fleet

Liberal David Groos, a former RCN captain, drew a bead on navy dispersal of ships when he fired the "opening shot" of his Esquimalt-Saanich federal election campaign at Shawnigan Community Hall last night.

Mr. Groos, introduced by Oak Bay MLA Alan Macfarlane, told supporters that the "time has come when more of Canada's navy should be stationed on the West Coast."

"There are almost three times as many ships and men on the East Coast... let's bring some of them home," said Mr. Groos.

He said the need for escort ships and sub-hunting submarines on the West Coast was "just as great" in the event of war.

He said more ships and submarines were needed to prevent enemy raiders from "sneaking into our coastal waters... let's take another look at the division between East and West. The historic requirement for having to provide ships to escort convoys to Europe... may no longer exist."

Gorge Plan Revived

The promoters of the Sherwood Forest medieval playland scheme are negotiating with private interests for a new site on the Gorge.

"In view of the negative attitude registered by Saanich council regarding the Sherwood Forest project to be developed on city-owned property, and insofar as it is our hope to be in business by July of this year, the principals are instructing Mr. (Milton) Tisdale to investigate an offer to acquire another property on the Gorge waters," one of the firm's partners, Hugh A. Martin, has written to city council.

Mr. Martin, president of Maxwell Construction Company Ltd. of Vancouver, told the Colonist yesterday the site under consideration is "in the west of the Redwood Park Motel."

Island's Power Lines Cut By Rig on Passing Ship

QUADRA ISLAND — This island was left without electricity last night after power lines across Seymour Narrows were cut. A 150-foot oil-drilling rig from Galveston, Tex., aboard the converted freighter Cofi II, snagged the four power lines, cutting them and pulling down wooden towers supporting the lines. B.C. Hydro officials say it may take a week to restore normal power to the island's 244 residents.

Abandon Ship Call Heard After Crash

ROTTERDAM (AP)—A Dutch shipping agency last night monitored radio broadcasts telling of a collision between two ships in the North Sea off Cape Finisterre.

One ship radioed that her crew was abandoning the vessel. The other said she had taken a big hole in her bow and called for all ships in the area to come to her assistance. The Dutch agency reported it had monitored a radio message from the Greek tanker Kilmavos. The message from the 32,233-ton ship said identified vessel and fire had broken out aboard. The message said the crew was abandoning the ship. The agency then heard a message from the 7,263-ton Ghanaian tanker vessel Ashkora River. She radioed that she had been in collision with an unidentified tanker.

The Ashkora River said a big hole had been opened in her bow and her No. 1 hold was flooded, the agency reported. Sea-going Dutch tugs were headed to the area of the reported collision, the agency said.

ALGIERS (UPI) — French security forces, fearing mass Moslem reprisals against Europeans, kept close watch yesterday over the native quarters of Algiers and Oran.

Police sources said the thousands of Moslems in the two biggest cities in Algeria are near the "breaking point" because of the daily bomb-and-bullet attacks by the outlawed European Secret Army Organization.

Reinforced security patrols stood guard near the teeming Moslem Casbah in Algiers.

PROVOKING MOSLEMS

The OAS campaign is aimed at provoking Moslems into retaliation and forcing intervention by French security forces in hopes of wrecking the Franco-Algerian rebel cause. The program for an independent Algeria under Moslem domination.

Algerian nationalist leaders urged Moslems to refrain from violence to avoid jeopardizing the agreement reached at Evian in March. But ominous cracks in the tight Moslem discipline were beginning to show.

In one of the worst incidents, a mob of enraged Moslems attacked Europeans on the fringe of the Casbah in Algiers following an OAS bombing which killed 20 Moslems and wounded 20 other persons.

Courier with a Coronet

LONDON (AP) — Britain's colonial office has one of the world's most aristocratic messenger boys—an earl.

"I had a very strict father," said the 10th Earl of Breadalbane and Holland Wednesday. "We fell out, but I now have a humble job and I'm happy." He is John Romer Boreland Campbell, 42, cut off in his father's will. His official seat is Kilburn Castle in the Scottish Highlands and he was educated at Eton and Sandhurst.

A former lieutenant in the Black Watch, he was wounded and twice was mentioned in dispatches for bravery in the Second World War. Jock, as his friends call him, succeeded to the title when his father died in 1959. The father's will cut him off without a penny. He successfully claimed about one-third of the estate. Approximately £10,000 (132,200) was given him, but it is being held in trust. The earl wants the trust revoked.

"It will cost about £100 to start the case," he explained. "I'm hoping to have enough money saved by the end of the year to see it through." Since his father's will, his father details of which he refuses to discuss—the earl has worked as a laborer, bartender, doorman and stunt man in the movies. He even has played the bagpipes professionally. His colonial office duty is distributing official papers to various offices. He is paid £10 a week.

Never Wanted Ban Zorin Scolds West

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union charged Wednesday the United States government's final decision to resume atmospheric explosions was proof that the U.S. and Britain never wanted an agreement to ban nuclear weapons tests.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valeriy Zorin told the 17-nation disarmament conference the two Western powers were insincere in insisting on effective international test-ban controls.

The statement was made before government informants in Washington disclosed that the United States had fired its first shot of the new nuclear test series in the atmosphere over the central Pacific. "Everyone can now see that the United States and the United Kingdom were attempting to wash their hands before the peoples of the world and shrug off the responsibility for the tests," Zorin declared. The Soviet delegate threatened last week to lead a Communist walkout as soon as the tests began. He did not repeat that threat. Conference sources said British Minister of State Joseph Goforth rejected Zorin's outburst as "somewhat rude, to say the least."
